Steer Wins Supreme Over All Champions At E-town

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — It's tough to be a supreme champion animal exhibitor. There are times when you could cry.

Jessica Stoltzfus had every reason to be upset after being stepped on again by her grand champion steer. So she cried. It was the sixth time in two days the otherwise gentle animal, weighing 1,305 pounds, wouldn't behave.

Despite having to nurse a sore right foot, Jessica stopped the tears only to wipe away a few more when she was honored the first time for exhibiting the supreme champion animal on Thursday evening at the Elizabethtown Fair.

Jessica, 14, daughter of Frank and Irene Stoltzfus, Elizabethtown, showed her heavyweight Angus/Maine Anjou crossbred steer, Willy (not named after the whale in the popular movie, she said), to supreme animal.

Jessica, a freshman at Elizabethtown High School, was surprised at the award, her first-time champion and the first time champion animal in any of the classes she's shown.

The Lancaster County Baby Beef 4-H Club member said she plans to show at the Denver Fair

World Record Milk Production Set Second Time This Year

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — For the second time this year, a world record for milk production has been set, again by a Holstein cow.

Raim Mark Jinx, owned by Lorance and Verla Raim, of Raims Dairy, in Cedaredge, Colo., has become the second cow this year to produce more than 60,000 pounds of milk in 365 days.

With the completion of her May 1995 Dairy Herd Improvement Records test, Jinx's record of 60,440 pounds of milk surpassed the previous record of 60,380 pounds made by Bell-Jr Rosabel, owned by the Bell-Jr. Group, of Calhan, Colo.

Jinx's production record includes 1,938 pounds of fat, and 1,884 pounds of protein on a three-times-per-day milking schedule. BST was used.

The herd was verification tested twice.

Jinx was born Dec. 6, 1988. Her sire was Walkway Chief Mark and her dam was Raim Columbus Jenny, and 85-point Columbus daughter.

Jinx is first on the National Leaders List for milk in the 3X 365-day mature class, first for 3X 365-day mature class for protein, and first in the 3X 305-day mautre class for protein.

She is second to Tullando Royalty Maxima in the 305-day mature class for milk.

Lorence Raim, who bred and owns Jinx, said he was pleased with her performance.

"She's the kind of cow that consistenly produced more milk with every lactation," he said, "not the kind that was just mediocre or good and then have a phenomenal record. When you look at her 305-day record, she was increasing about 10,000 pounds each lactation."

Although the herd is separated

Walker Visits Lancaster, Chester Farms

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

RONKS (Lancaster Co.) — U.S. Representative Bob Walker visited farms in Lancaster and Chester Counties Monday on his annual tour to answer questions from rural constituents.

The first morning stop was at the farm of the Carl Landis family where a dozen or more farmers sat on straw bales in the front lawn to hear Rep. Walker answer questions about NAFTA, GATT, taxes, regulation reform, and the new farm bill.

On the foreign trade issues, Walker said NAFTA has had mixed success because of the collapse of the Mexican peso. As Mexico becomes more prosperous, we have a better chance the NAFTA agreement will be a very good plus for the long term relationship.

As for GATT, Walker said this agreement sets the stage for the next century where global competition is going to be an important part of whether we will be a prosperous nation or not.

The senator said parts of GATT set up bureaucratic organizations that he called "over-kill." Nevertheless, he said you need a structure in which to make global competition work. With GATT we were able to negotiate with trading partners around the world. "To believe this nation can get along without some trade agreement and be isolated from the rest of the world is just completly outside of the realm of reality," Walker said. "We are the world's largest exporter even if we have a trade imbalance. I believe GATT gives us the possibility to have a strong position in world export markets."

Walker said that while the way we go about environmental regulations may change, no one is suggesting that we are backing off the

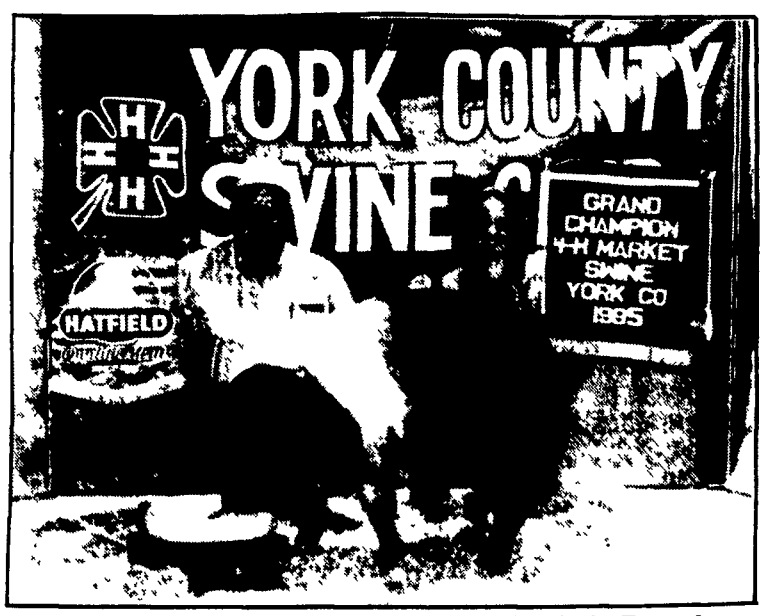
York 4-H Holds Swine Roundup And Sale



Heather Jasienski's crossbred pig is York Roundup champion and sells for $2.90 per pound to Hatfield Packing Company, represented by Ezra Good.

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

THOMASVILLE (York Co.) — Heather Jasienski and her dad had a slight difference of opinion about a pig she selected to raise as one of her 4-H projects this season.

She liked it. He didn't.

But the pig that Heather picked from the Michael Jasienski family's farrow-to-finish hog operation at Felton fulfilled her expectations. The 248-pound crossbred bested 72 other contending pigs at the York County Swine Roundup to take home the champion honors for the 15-year-old Red Lion High School sophomore. The roundup and sale were held August 13-14 at Weikert's Buying Station.

Jasienski's champion opened the bidding at the annual livestock sale, bringing the event's top price of $2.90 per pound. Winning bidder was long-time, regional youth swine sale supporter Hatfield Packing Company, represented by buyer Ezra Good. A 4-H swine project exhibitor for six years, Heather raised a total of 14 head this season.

Hatfield jumped back into the spirited bidding for the reserve champion, the Hamp-Duroc crossbred exhibited by Tammi Grubb, Hanover. The final bid was $1.75 for the 242-pound, runner-up winner. Grubb, 14, is a freshman at South Western High School and a 4-H exhibitor for five years.

A matching pair of homebred, York-Hamp crossed pigs claimed the champion pair from the seven she is raising this year, her seventh as a 4-H youth competitor. She is a freshman student at Dallastown Area High School.

Weighing in at 225 and 233 pounds, the champion pair sold to D.R. Kern Plumbing and Heating, represented by Don Kern who offered the final bid of 75 cents.

Jennifer Flinchbaugh, York, was the reserve pair winner, with her 217- and 210-pound Hamp-York crossbreds. A Dallastown High freshman, 14-year-old Jennifer raised eight hogs for 4-H project work this summer, her sixth season in the program.

The pair sold on a 67-cent bid from Hatfield's Ezra Good.

Champion lightweight, shown by Justin Hutington of Jacobus, weighed in at 201 pounds, and sold for 50 cents per pound to

National Grain Market

ST. JOSEPH, MO
AUGUST 23, 1995

Crop concerns, good export lineup, and fund buying pushed wheat bids slightly higher. Corn bids fell slightly lower on wet weather reported in parts of the Midwest and a slowdown in export sales. Soybean bids were narrowly mixed with beneficial rains, lack of export demand, and weaker oil and meal added pressure. However, hot weather in most of the Midwest underpinned bids. Wheat 3 to 5 cents higher. Corn 1 to 2 cents lower. Sorghum 2 to 5 cents lower. Soybeans mixed, 1 cent lower to 3 cents higher. Indications that several good export sales are in the making, offered strength to wheat bids. However, nothing has been confirmed at this time. Crop concerns due to hot, humid weather continued to add support to bids. Corn and soybean growing areas received some moisture but hot temperatures continue and rains are far and few between. Traders expect USDA to cut yield estimates in their next reports. Soybean oil and meal demand slipped lower and export sales have been scant this week, especially for soybeans.

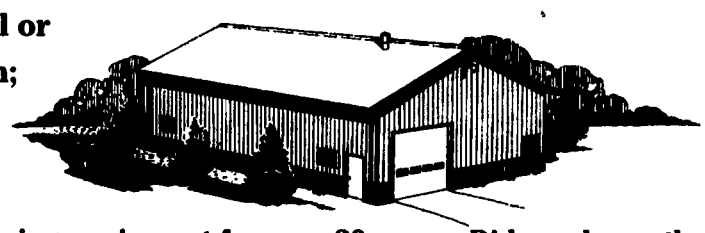
Our Building Lease may be the best way to build your farm or commercial building.

Whether your new farm or commercial building is of pole, timber column, stud, steel or block construction; choose Telmark lease financing.



Telmark has been leasing equipment for over 30 years. Did you know that we've been leasing new buildings for that long too? Consider the features:

- Tax deductibility and accelerated write-offs: Lease payments are income tax deductible over the term of the lease compared to 20-year depreciation of farm buildings and 39-year depreciation of commercial buildings.
- Low upfront costs: Beginning costs may be as little as one monthly lease payment.
- Flexible lease term: Building lease terms start aggressively at five years but may be as long as ten, twelve, or fifteen years.
- Customized payment schedules: Lease payment schedules match your cash flow. Payment options include monthly, quarterly, annually, as well as, skip or specially designed seasonal payments.

How do you start leasing a building from Telmark? Talk with a qualified builder to determine your needs and building cost. And call your Telmark representative:

The Old Farmer's Almanac — This Week With

AUGUST 28-SEPT 3, 1995

HUEY P. LONG DAY, AUG. 30 (LA.).

SUMMER'S FLEETING YOUTH?

August 28 marks the Canadian Summer Holiday. It's also the Feast Day of St. Augustine of Hippo (354-430), a man of rhetoric who repented of his "wild youth" in Carthage. Summer and youth are both fleeting. We "welcome the coming, speed the parting guest," but few of us like to see summer end. If it's any comfort, time moves a little slower in summer, or at least the grandfather clocks would suggest so. It turns out that metal pendulums expand with the heat, making them slightly longer and slightly slower. So enjoy your extra bit of summer and extended youth — ethereal though they may be.

"In youth we learn; in age we understand."

— Marie Von Ebner-Eschenbach

TIP OF THE WEEK

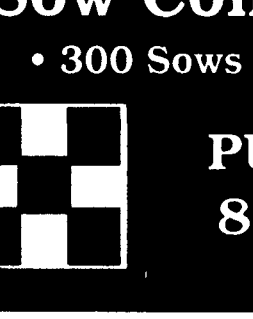
BLUEBERRY JAM

10 cups blueberries
1/2 cup water
6 cups sugar
juice from 1 lemon



Pick over, wash, drain, and crush berries. Add water and boil until berries are soft. Stir in sugar and boil to a jelly (about 220° F.) Stir in lemon juice. Pour into hot, sterilized jam jars, leaving 1/4-inch head space. Wipe rims and threads clean. Top with hot sealing lids and process in boiling water canner for 5 minute. Let cool for 12 to 24 hours.

Makes about 7 half-pints.

The Old Farmer's WEATHER PROVERBS

When the donkey blows his horn,
'Tis time to house your hay and corn.

Horseflies are more troublesome before a rain.

Rain before seven,
Clear before eleven.

St. Matthew's Day (Sept. 2) bright and clear,
Brings good wine in next year.

BIG DUTCHMAN BROILER SYSTEMS

It's interesting that some Poultry Producers who would never buy the cheapest tractor in the lot will buy the cheapest equipment for their birds. If you want equipment that lasts, that costs little to maintain but delivers a lot in every workday, you want what Producers all across the country have already discovered: Big Dutchman, the "Mark of Excellence" and Hershey Equipment, Co. "A Step Ahead". You can always find cheaper equipment. But these days, who can afford it?

OPINION

4-H Against Crime

In Pennsylvania, the state police commissioner says violent cri among juveniles has reached alarming proportions. Teen-age hoou lums, armed with deadly weapons, are terrorizing our streets and neighborhoods, committing senseless acts of brutality. Often their victims are other teenagers, but these young criminals ultimately prey on all of us, young and old alike.

Last year, 6,270 juveniles were arrested for violent crimes. And of course, everyone is concerned. The state proposes a get-tough policy. And as children grow up faster, they become liable to be treated as adults earlier in life. But there is a better way. And this way has its roots in agriculture.

We're talking about the 4-H clubs and their volunteer leaders. According to Lamartine Hood, dean, Penn State College of Ag Sciences, there are 117,000 young people who are in the 4-H system in the state, with 12,000 4-Hers in Philadelphia and 6,000 members in Pittsburgh. While there are no records to show if rural youth are more or less likely to be arrested, we know that the young people who have a 4-H experience certainly have an opportunity to learn and grow in the right direction. To us, the recent crime reports only emphasize the need to "train up a child in the way he should go." And 4-H does its part.

It will never be known how many young people have been pointed away from a life of crime into a productive adult life by the 4-H system. But we believe the number is greater than you think.

BST & ME

It was Feb. on the farm and the year was '94.
Dairy farming was pretty good.
Milk prices were rising in the store.
Monsanto came out with a new product,
For short they called it BST.
Give the cows a shot every two weeks
And end up with 15 percent extra for me.

The consumer put up quite a squawk.
They were concerned about safe milk to drink.
But I said I'm still going to use it.
I really don't care what you think.
After my first set of shots production was up.
It was making milk at every turn,
So I said to my wife, "Let's plan a vacation.
This year we'll have money to burn."

When I got my first milk check I noticed
That the total was lower than before.
That was because by using BST
Everyone was shipping much more.
But I said to myself that's easy to solve
I'll milk three times a day for another 15 percent.

But on my next milk check the total was lower,
As on down the milk price went.
Then my herd average shot to 24,000.
I was the talk of the local feed store,
But when I sub the 30 percent increase'
My average was lower than before.

I noticed my cows were getting thinner.
Getting them bred I couldn't seem to do.
My feed rep said, "Oh that's easy to solve,
Just feed more of my high energy brew."
My feed bills began to go higher
And my ability to pay was slipping.
But I said to my wife, "Oh don't be concerned
Just look at all the milk we're shipping."

Then one morning I woke up with chest pain
So I had the doctor check me out
He listened to my heart, X-rayed my lungs
And said, "I see what your pain is about.
You've got to cut back on your work load
If your grandchildren you want to see."
I said, "But doc I just can't.
I'm making money with BST

So I'm going to decrease my hours
And milk two times a day instead of three.
With less milk around it should up the price,
And Monsanto you can keep your BST."

Now Is The Time

To Observe Corn Maturity

One of the secrets to harvesting high quality corn silage is to harvest the crop at the proper maturity and moisture level.

This is something farmers need to think about now because of all the hot weather and possible drought conditions we are experiencing.

How fast corn matures is determined by growing degree days, not by calendar. The warmer the days and the nights, the greater the growing degree days. This causes the corn to mature and dry down more rapidly.

Hot, dry windy conditions may cause corn to dry down at an accelerated rate. It may be drier than what your casual observations may lead you to think.

Check your corn fields frequently to monitor the rate your silage corn is maturing and drying down. Also, you will want to check your fields now to observe how well the corn has pollinated.

If some of the fields you intend to pick or shell did not pollinate well, you may want to salvage them as silage and harvest your silage fields as grain. However, remember that well-eared corn also makes the best quality silage.

To Consider Cover Crops

Winter cover crops are often overlooked nutrient management tool that can provide numerous benefits.

Many farmers need to empty their manure storage units during the fall season. This means these crop nutrients are applied to cropland at a time of year when they are not needed by a growing crop.

Winter cover crops can take advantage of these nutrients. If you are applying manure to crop land this fall, plan on planting a small grain cover crop such as rye. The rye will take up the available nitrogen and hold it in the plant, preventing its loss to the water supply.

If the rye is harvested, the nutrients will be utilized as high quality feed. If the rye is killed or plowed in the spring, the nutrients will become available to the following crop.

The rye will also prevent nutrient loss by slowing soil erosion. Rye can be planted as late as November, but the earlier it is planted the more nutrients it will take up and the more it will yield in the spring.

To Watch Potassium Levels

Many of the fresh cow and early lactation problems in dairy cattle could be related to excess levels of potassium in the dry cow ration, especially in the weeks preceding calving, according to Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent.

Excess potassium can tie up calcium and magnesium. A lot of this potassium could be coming from feeding forages that are high in potassium.

Heavy applications of manure and/or the application of potash fertilizers can elevate potash levels of legumes, grasses, corn, and other crops.

What is the solution to the problem? Shirk recommends purchasing grass hay for dry cows. This grass hay should be high quality and not grown on heavily manured or heavily fertilized land.

Feed anionic salts such as calcium sulfate, magnesium sulfate, etc. to counteract high potassium levels in the ration. Finally, balance the fresh cow ration for calcium and magnesium, as well as for other nutrients.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "Excellence can be yours if you rise every time you fall."

A BANQUET OF CONSEQUENCES

A BANQUET OF CONSEQUENCES
August 27, 1995

Background Scripture:
II Kings 17:1-23
Devotional Reading:
Deuteronomy 8:11-20

Someone has said, "Sooner or later we all sit down to a banquet of consequences."

That's what happened to the nation of Israel.

Keep in mind that when King Solomondied, the Hebrews split into two nations: Israel in the north and Judah in the south. In 722 after a considerable siege, Shalmaneser V, king of Assyria, conquered Israel and carried off more than 27,000 of its inhabitants to faraway lands. He also brought foreign peoples to settle in what had been Israel, which is also called Samaria. That is one of the reasons why in Jesus' time there was such hostility between Jews and Samaritans.

The fall of Israel was not something that had happened overnight. For years the prophets had been warning the people that their disobedience to God would bring his judgment upon them. Obviously, these prophetic messages had not much effect upon them then in 722 the prophecies were fulfilled. The Samaritans were a polyglot mixture of peoples.

It is important to realize that Israel was carried off into captivity from which it never returned not because of the sheer might of the Assyrian nation. The cause of Israel's fall was its moral decay; Shalmaneser V and his Assyrian armies were only the means whereby the consequences of this decay were carried out. The problem of Israel in the 8th century B.C. was not the danger without, but the one within.

INTERIOR DECAY

Nations and individuals are more likely to fall from interior decay than exterior perils. For Israel the inner decay included the worship of idols, debauched behavior, disobedience to the commandments of the Lord, human sacrifice, and the practice of sorcery. All of this corrupted the moral fiber of the nation. Israel would fall, not because of God's anger, but as the natural consequence of their own depravity. Unfortunately, when we decay from within we are not likely to notice it until too late. By the time the inner decay surfaces, the consequences may be inevitable.

But Israel had lots of opportunity to escape the inevitable. Yet the people were oblivious to the moral decay of their nation. God had sent Isaiah and others to alert the people to what was happening. Isaiah had reduced it to a simple formula: ". . . cease to do evil, learn to do good; seek justice, correct oppression; defend the fatherless, plead for the widow" (1:16,17). Israel had the opportunity to recognize its sin, repent and receive God's forgiveness. God's invitations were very precise: "Come now, let us reason together, says the Lord: though your sins are lilke scarlet, they shall be white as snow; though they are red like crimson, they shall become like wool" (1:18).

IF YOU'RE WILLING

The thing about prophecy is that its predictions are not inevitable — if we need and change. "If you are willing and obedient you shall eat the good of the land; but if you refuse and rebel, you shall be devoured by the sword" (1:19,20). So prophecy is not intended to pronounce doom, but to inspire repentance. It becomes doom only if we refuse to hear and respond to the message.

In Israel's case it was doom that was chosen. "But they would not listen, but were stubborn, as their fathers had been, who did not believe in the Lord their God" (II Kings 17:14). An old eastern proverb says that calamities sent by heaven may be avoided, but from those we bring on ourselves there is no escape.

While all this was happening to Israel, their southern cousins in Judah were watching. One would think they would learn a lesson from Israel's tragic example and realize that the same banquet of consequences would be their fate as well — unless they repented and changed their ways.

Dear Friends of the Clinic for Special Children.

We are again asking for your support and donations of saleable items to sell at the 4th Annual Benefit Auction on Sept. 16, 1995, at the Leola Produce Auction site on Brethren Church Rd., Leola, PA.

All proceeds will go to the Clinic for Special Children, a non-profit organization, with Dr. Holmes Morton as the attending physician. Dr. Morton has taken a special interest in several hereditary diseases. By testing all newborn babies of high-risk percent-age, he has been able to prevent irreversible brain damage of many of these young children. The same tests that are done at the clinic for $35.00 would cost $350.00 to $400.00 at major medical centers, making these tests too expensive for many parents. The costs of owning and operating this laboratory equipment are huge, but with the funds from this annual auction the clinic has been able to offer this service to their clients at a price that is affordable by the average parent.

You may contact any of the following for more information or, if you wish, deliver your donation to any of them. Thank you for your support.

World Record Milk Production Set

in lots according to production, he said Jinx did not receive special treatment during her lactation.

"We don't have box stalls here, and she was fed a TMR with the rest of the group," he said. "She has a lot of strength, but she has to have that to make a record like this."

The Raims do emply a nutritionist. "We couldn't have done it without him," Lorence said.

Jinx has two offspring in the farm's 130-cow milking herd. A Monitor daughter has just completed a 30,000-pound record, and a first-calf Voltage daughter has completed two very promising tests, he said.

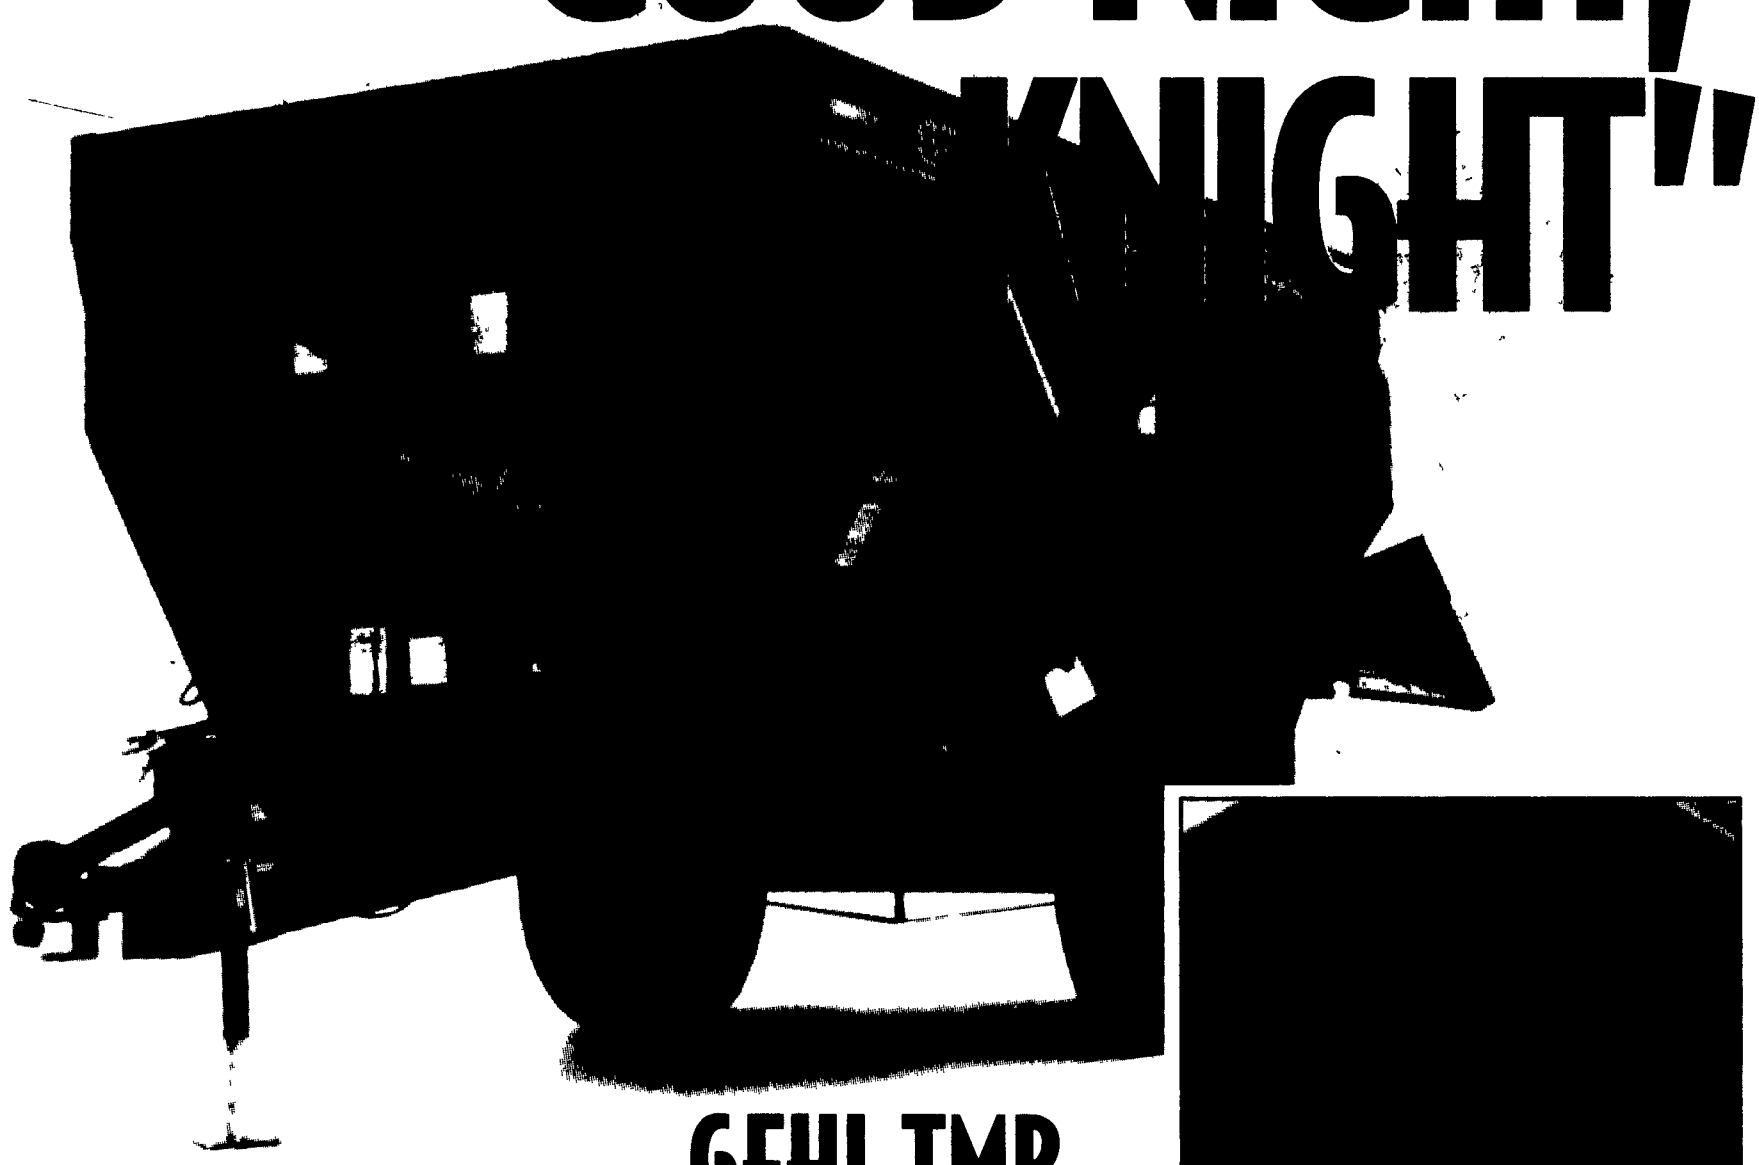
According to Raim, they plan to aggressively recover embryos from Jinx in the future. They have recovered embryos in the past, beginning with her third lactation. She has several ET offspring on the farm now, he said.

Lorence said he hopes the embryo recovery program is successful. If not, Raim said they will rebreed Jinx and hope she continues her tremendouse production. "She's reaching that mature age, so we could hope for another 10,000-pound increase," he said. "We kept wondering if she would break the record this time — there were a few times when we just didn't know. Even at the end it was too close to call. I wouldn't have predicted it would go one way or the other."

Nonetheless, he said he's proud of Jinx's achievement. "She's the kind you'd rather have a whole herd of, instead of just one."

However, Jinx is not the only producer on the farm. Raim Big Al Harmony recently completed a 3X 365-day record of 55,030 pounds of milk, placing her fourth on the National Leaders List for milk in the mature class. The Raim herd rolling average is 25,570 pounds of milk.

"GOOD NIGHT, KNIGHT"



GEHL TMR MIXER FEEDERS ARE #1.

It's a fact. There isn't a better TMR mixer feeder than the Gehl "Total Mix".

"Total Mix" Delivers More

Mix more long-stemmed hay into the ration -- up to 30% by weight depending on hay type and moisture content.

Gehl's secret is the remarkable "Hay-Slicer Auger." It incorporates a pair of unique knife assemblies as an integral part of each bottom auger to slice through long-stemmed hay for a quicker mix with less chance of wrapping.

Gehl's four auger system is well-known for superior blending and mixing of all feed ingredients into the most consistent ration possible -- in much less time. The new "Hay Slicer Auger" gives you that kind of fast mixing action in a wider variety of feed materials.

Compare "Total Mix" to Any Other Mixer Feeder

Take the Gehl Challenge. Compare and you'll see -- feature for feature the Gehl "Total Mix" line of TMR Mixer Feeders delivers superior performance with exceptional reliability.

Walker Visits Lancaster, Chester Farms

standards.

"The way we regulate is changing," Walker said. "We don't need bureaucrats making decisions at the federal and state level and getting in each other's way. We are spending more for legal costs than we are for environmental clean up. We need a series of national standards and allow the states to enforce these standards in a way that makes sense to the local areas. But if you pollute the streams, for example, we are going to go after you. We are eliminating layers of bureaucracy, but we are not going to lower environmental standards.

"In regulation reform, you need to make certain that there is good science to take the suggested action. Are the benefits large enough to justify the cost? EPA should be required to apply the economic test every time it goes with a regulatory package.

As for tax reduction, Walker said he believed the new tax package would be likely to contain two things: a reduction in capital gains tax down to about 19 or 20 percent and a $500 per child tax credit.

"We are acting across the board to eliminate a lot of spending," Walker said. "But you can't cut the budget without cutting the budget. You need to do litigation, taxation, and regulation reform at the same time you cut the budget. That way everything comes together, and you can end up with a more profitable agriculture."

Walker said he opposes a sales or consumption tax because it hasn't worked in other countries. He favors a flat tax but said there is no simple answer to this question because exemptions in the flat tax lead to the same problems we have now.

Walker said he expected a new farm bill to be formed by the end of September so it could be part of the reconciliation bill to get the farm bill provisions into the budget. But he said there is a lot of disagreement by segments of agriculture and those outside of agriculture about what should go into the farm bill. The debate will be "an interesting brawl before we find the approach." Walker said.

"Farmers need to be good business people," Walker said. "The wealth of the future is going to be created by cleverness, manipulation of information. You could do it by muscle. But in the future it will be done by brain power. The individual farmer that is the most clever in using the information that is available will make money."

Farmers gather on straw bales to discuss political issues with US Representative Bob Walker.

Also on the tour were the farms of Leroy and Lloyd Welk, Quarryville; Harry and Dorthy Troop and Dave and Becky Troop, Cochranville, and Dave and Bob Hodge, West Chester.

Kirst's Market Hog Overall Champion In Southeast Derby

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

INTERCOURSE (Lancaster Co.) — A crossbred entry by Roxanne Kirst of Lebanon recently won the title of overall champion of this year's Southeast Pennsylvania 4-H Market Hog Derby.

The 5-year-old competition is unique in that it has been created as a long-term educational program in the raising of swine for the commercial market.

Very simply, the competition consists of participating youth entering hogs into the contest early in the year at a central weigh-in place.

They take the young hogs back home for several months of feeding and caring. The youth are to keep accurate records of the feed amounts, expenses, health, etc.

In August, the youth bring their entries back to a central location where their hogs are reweighed, evaluated on foot, and then taken for slaughter. The carcasses are then evaluated.

The show was held last Wednesday at the Manheim Fairgrounds. The carcass evaluation and educational program was held last Friday night at Stoltzfus Meats in Intercourse.

There are three areas of concern in the contest. The on-foot show ring results, the carcass conformation and composition evaluation, and the rate of gain.

Undersized, or oversized hogs, carcasses with too much backfat, or too small a loin eye, are disqualified.

Out of the 35 market hogs weighed-in, 20 were continued into the final evaluations. Of those, four were disqualified for too much backfat, while one was disqualified for too small a lean eye area (LEA).

Kirst's overall champion weighed in at 56 pounds, finishing out to 247. The carcass was 33 inches long and weighed 186 pounds with only .75-inch of backfat and a 7.05 square-inch LEA (the largest in the competition), for a final rating of .837 pounds of lean gain per day. The carcass came out to 54.723 percent lean.

A final index is calculated based on the same commercial industry values endorsed by the National Pork Producers Council for its members. The Kirst hog received a final index of .925.

Dr. Ed Mills, Penn State meat specialist stands with Roxanne Kirst, and her overall champion market hog which also won the title of champion carcass.

Allison Hughes stands with brother Andrew and Dr. Ed Mills and her reserve overall champion of the 1995 S.E. Pa. 4-H Market Hog Derby.

In the show ring, her hog didn't fare as well. It had placed third in its class of four animals.

A crossbred entry by Allison Hughes, daughter of Lancaster County Extension Agent Chester and Marie Hughes, was reserve overall champion and grand champion in the show ring.

Her animal weighed in at 65 pounds, finished at 262 pounds and had a carcass weight of 193 pounds. The 33.2-inch long carcass was 51.996 percent lean, and had an average daily gain of 1.989 pounds, with .776 pounds lean gain.

Backfat on Hughes's hog was measured at an inch. The final index was .864.

Third place overall was an entry by Jason Shirk, of Lebanon. Shirk's entry won champion honors for average daily rate of gain (ADG) with 2.102 pounds per day, edging out some close competition. The pounds of lean gain per day was .775.

Shirk's crossbred market hog also placed third in its show ring class of four that included Brandon Winebark's reserve champion on-foot animal. The entry by Winebark, son of Kenneth and Janet Winebark, Myerstown, finished out 10th in overall index.

Shirk's hog weighed in at 47 pounds, out at 253 pounds, and the carcass weighed 185 pounds with a 1-inch backfat thickness. The 32.8-inch long carcass was 49.735 percent lean.

Taking honors for the reserve champion rate of gain was an entry by Cory Pfautz, of Lancaster. While his entry finished 15th overall, it had grown an average of 2.094 pounds per day, and had .730 pounds of lean gain per day.

Three judges were involved in the contest. Duff George, with Hatfield Quality Meats, Bob Mikesell, with White Oak Mills, and Rod Gilbert, swine herd manager at Delaware Valley College of Science and Agriculture in Doylestown.

As a team, all three judges placed the animals individually. Mikesell did the structural scoring.

Tim Beck and Amy Church, both with York County's office of Penn State Extension, did on-rail measurements.

Kirst received a $150 first place award, Hughes received a $125 second-place award, while Shirk received a $100 third-place award.

The final event at Stoltzfus Meats included educational presentations by Dr. Ed Mills, Penn State meat specialist who did the carcass evaluations, and Dr. Bob Graybill, a veterinarian who did health checks on the animals entered.

While Graybill's health evaluations are not counted in the final index, they are considered important because they can point to possible problems with achieving the type of production desired.

In his evaluations, Graybill looked for and scored the health of the lungs, internal parasites, mange, and the score for rhinitis. Four of the entries received almost perfect health scores, while one received a perfect health score, including for rhinitis.

The carcass with the perfect health score was exhibited by Heather Jasienski, of York. It also won the title as the reserve champion carcass.

Mills provided instruction on carcass evaluation and production, and how to raise lean pork.

Stoltzfus Meats bought all the carcasses at the Hatfield basic price of $68.78 per hundredweight, adjusting for fat.

A number of sponsors provided awards and other support.

Championship sponsors for the event include Hatfield, Carlos R. Leffler Inc., and the Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council.

Class sponsors included Master Mix Feeds, Dr. Graybill, Meridian Bank, Leidy Inc., and Good's Livestock.

Hog Derby Awards Scholarships

INTERCOURSE (Lancaster Co.) — A York County girl and a Dauphin County boy were named recipients of the Southeast Pennsylvania 4-H Market Derby Educational Award.

The $250 scholarships are provided through funds provided through sponsorship by individuals, groups and and business for those who participate in the unique 4-H swine production program.

The scholarship awards are presented based on academic achievement, participation in raising hogs, and on the basis of essay answers to questions on an application.

Jeremy Dobbin, of Halifax, and Heather Jasienski, of Felton, were both selected winners of the scholarships.

In his application, Dobbin wrote that his immediate plans include attending Penn State Main Campus at University Park in to pursue a 4-year degree in the College of Agricultural Sciences.

"After school, I would like to have a small farm with a few hogs so that my children can have the same experiences that I have had."

He has three sows and this spring they produced 22 young. He kept eight to show and 16 were sold as feeder pigs. He showed two hogs at the York Rib Cook-Off and four at the Dauphin County 4-H Fair. He said he intends to show two at the Gratz fair, and one at the 1996 Pa. Farm Show.

"I am interested in all hog operations, but one type interests me most," he wrote. "I am interested in small operations on a family farm. I also enjoy seeing hogs raised on those farms from farrow to finish.

"Family operations interest me because I feel that hogs are taken care of better when a family's livelihood is on the line. I believe that hogs are watched over better by a family with a few hogs than a family or employees with a lot of hogs.

"I also like to see all stages of a hog's life, from farrow to finish."

Dobbin became involved with raising hogs after joining the Upper Dauphin County 4-H Livestock Club when young. This year is his 13th involved with raising hogs.

His family has become involved also, having bought a couple of bred gilts at the state Farm Show about six years ago and building up to 11 sows currently.

He has also been involved in leadership within his 4-H organization, serving as secretary, vice president and president, in addition to attending meetings and serving on committees.

A member of the county livestock judging team, he is also involved in FFA.

Heather Jasienski, daughter of Mike and Bertha Jasienski, wrote in her application that she also intends to pursue a 4-year degree at an agricultural college.

"I am very interested in the genetic makeup of animals and using artificial insemination in a swine herd. I would like to one day be involved in a large swine breeding operation that would concentrate on using artificial insemination to improve their herd."

Jasienski has raised 14 pigs for 4-H and FFA shows this year. One was exhibited in the derby last week and was named reserve champion carcass. The carcass also had the best health evaluation at slaughter.

She wrote in her application that she intended to show three hogs at her county 4-H club's roundup in August, four purebred hogs at the 4-H show at the York Fair, and three crossbred market hogs at York. When she wrote the application, she said she intended to buy two pigs for the Keystone Invitational Livestock Exposition and two for the state Farm Show.

She has worked in a farrow to finish operation and said she finds it very interesting.

"In a farrow to finish operation, a hog producer uses many different skills to have an operation run successfully. Since I am also interested in using genetics and artificial insemination, this operation would be the ideal one for me."

Heather said that growing up with her father's hog operation and helping with it has given her valu-

Food Handler Certification Advisory Board

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Charles C. Brosius recently announced the formation of a board to review and recommend food handler certification programs for supervisory personnel in the food and beverage industry.

Such a certification process would help to ensure that the personnel are properly trained in safe food handling practices.

"This is the first time in history that the department has had the complete responsibility for the safety of food from the farmer's field to the consumer's table," Brosius said. "Food handler certification programs will help provide added protection for consumers with as little regulatory burden on the industry as possible.

As part of a joint effort between department officials and the food industry, legislation was developed to address food handler certification.

Act 131 of 1994, which includes the Food Employee Certification Act, provides for mandatory food handler certification in food establishments by the year 2001.

Food establilshments include retail food stores and public eating and drinking places.

The act created the state Food Employee Certification Advisory Board. The board consists of 21 members, appointed by the Agriculture Secretary, who serves as chairman.

The board includes representatives of the food industry and related organizations. Board members will serve terms to two, three or four years.

Food establishment employees shall be certified by the department following the completion of industry-specific training programs recommended by the advisory board and approved by the department.

Local regulatory certification programs established prior to Sept. 1, 1994 may remain in effect.

The initial certification of food handlers will be in effect for five years. Renewal of certification will be based on the attendance of courses recommended by the advisory board and approved by the department.

The board's working groups will continue to examine the certification issue. The next meeting of the full board is scheduled for November.

Elizabeth Walton had the grand champion Holstein, and Brad Varner had the reserve grand champion.

Sign-Up Meeting Set

WAKEFIELD (Lancaster Co.) — A Clean and Green educational and sign-up meeting is scheduled Tuesday, Aug. 29 at 7 p.m. here at the Grange Hall.

Lancaster County Extension Director John Schwartz and Terry Kauffman, Lancaster County commissioner, will provide information about the Clean and Green program for those who attend the free program.

Also, a notary will be on hand to handle the program sign-up forms.

Ayrshire Breeders Hold Convention

EAU CLAIR, Wis. — Enthusiastic, optimistic and trusting describe the mood of over 250 members attending the 1995 Ayrshire Annual Meeting in Eau Clair, Wisconsin.

Enthusiastic about the progress being made within the breed, optimistic about the marketing potential for Ayrshires and trusting of the leadership being provided by their elected representatives to the Board of Directors.

The Board of Directors, in a meeting preceding the annual meeting, continued its focus on genetic improvements for the breed.

Following up on its announced goal of doubling the genetic gain annually, over its present pace, they approved development of production and type evaluation programs the basis for all genetic progress. Liberal recognition of the herds achieving these genetic goals will be the cornerstone along with its approval to proceed with the development of programs to improve type evaluations.

The members heard reports from their officers and committee chairman including that for the second year registration were up and the association had a slight gain overall financially. It was announced that the conversion of the registry and accounting functions to a state of the art data processing system developed in Australia will be completed this fall.

Visitors from Germany who have been purchasing embryos from the Ayrshire breed confirmed a growing interest in the breed's hardiness and ability to compete profitably.

Duriong the annual meeting, members, in breakout groups, discussed further ways to enhance the breed genetically, adopted several bylaw changes and elected officers and directors for the next year.

James McConnell of Ohio was re-elected president and Dale Schilling of Indiana a first term director. Others re-elected to the board were Linda Hanson of Minnesota, Bruce Nelson of Wisconsin and David Patrick from Maryland and second vice president. John Rodgers of Pennsylvania was re-elected first vice president.

During the course of events, Wisconsin breeders hosted members to their farms, socialized over generous portions of food, held a state officers meeting and leadership seminar.

The convention concluded with an auction of animals for an average of $1,526.

Association, Select Sires Make Agreement

BRATTLEBORO, Vt.—The board of directors of the Ayrshire Breeders Association has approved an agreement with Select Sires, Plain City, Ohio to conduct the type evaluations of Ayrshire cows.

"This is a bold step," said Jim McConnell, president.

"This will effectively reduce costs by more than 50 percent to the breeders and stimulate participating in the breed's type evaluation program used in genetic evaluations and marketing.

"The association is continuing to step up efforts to put such progressive action into place to provide breeders improved opportunity for breeding more productive, longer living and thus more profitable herds of Ayrshires."

Details of the program are being sent to each active member of the Association. Others may inquire by calling the Ayrshire office (802) 254-7460 or by writing to Box 1608. Brattleboro. Vermont 05301.

Animal registrations have increased in each of the past two years for the association. Export markets have increased as has the domestic interest due to the recognition of the superior grazing capabilities of the breed.

(sheep and steers), Ephrata (sheep), Manheim (sheep and steers) and New Holland (sheep) fairs. Jessica also wants to show at the state Farm Show.

Five judges selected the champion steer. Margaret Diffenbach, assistant to extension for livestock, said the steer was really "long-sided" and would do well at the Farm Show.

At the evening sale of champions, the steer was purchased for $3,200 by Bill Campbell, Hoss's Steak and Sea House, Duncanville.

The reserve steer, exhibited by Jason Stoltzfus, Elizabethtown, was sold for $2,200 to Groff's Meats.

Champion goat of the show was a Nubian shown by Jodi Gebhard, Manheim. The goat was sold to Lebanon Valley Bank, represented by Mike Firestine, for $200. The reserve, shown by Nicole Eisenhower, Lititz, sold for $100 to New Holland Sales Stables.

One of the supreme champion animal judges, Dr. Robert Herr, a Dorset sheep breeder from Narvon, said the supreme champion goat was a good representative of the meat goat species. The "very desirable" goat showed a lot of quality, with a good hair coat. "If they don't have quality look of the hair coat, they're not going to get very far," said Herr.

The grand champion hog, shown by Justin Good, Lititz, was purchased by Bill Campbell of Hoss's Steak and Sea House for $800. The reserve, shown by Amy Becker, Manheim, was sold for $700 to Country Table Restaurant.

The champion, a purebred Duroc gilt, is a "tremendous representation of a market hog," said Greg Musser, Elizabethtown. Musser, county 4-H livestock judging team coach, said the "wide-made gilt" could do well "at the local level and at some higher, national-type shows."

Justin Good, right, sold his grand champion hog at Elizabethtown to Hoss's Steak and Sea House, represented here by Bill Campbell, for $800.

Brandon Ziegler, Lititz, won champion sheep, a Southdown that is a "fine representative" of the breed. George Lewis, loan officer from Farmer's First, Lititz, said, "I'd be very proud to have it in our flock."

The champion sheep was sold to Feedwell Construction, Manheim, for $1,200. The reserve, shown by Suzanne Miller, went to Kunzler Meats for $1,050.

The champion dairy animal, a 2-year-old Holstein, "shows a lot of dairy quality," said Joe Wivell, Lancaster Genetics, a member of the Elizabethtown judging team. The animal was exhibited by Amy Brandt, Elizabethtown.

Harry Bachman was auctioneer.

Jessica Stoltzfus, right, sold her supreme champion animal at the Elizabethtown Fair to Hoss's Steak and Sea House, represented here by Bill Campbell, for $3,200.

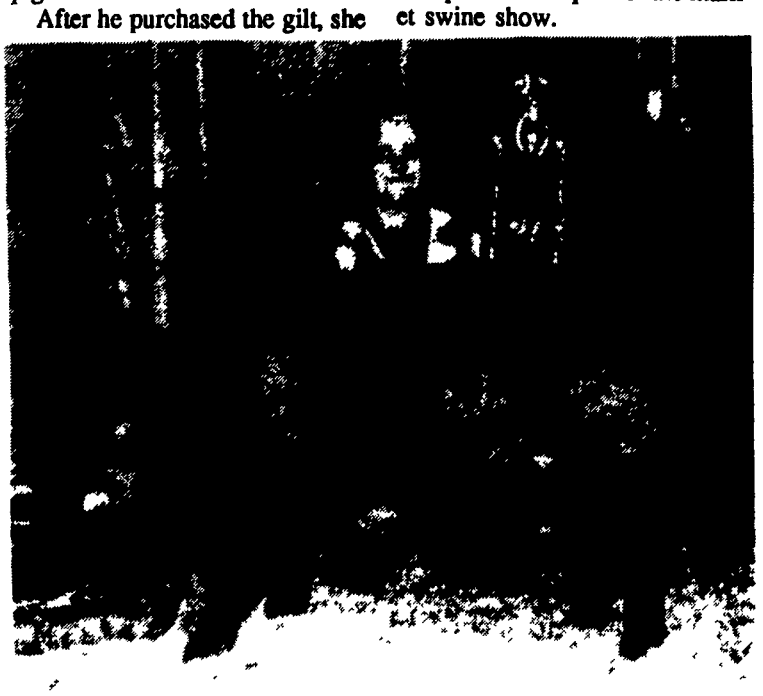
Hog 'Blossoms' To E-town Grand Champion

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — A few months ago, Justin Good went to the Oscar Manbeck Swine Farm in Bethel, Berks County. Justin was impressed with the muscling he saw on a pig.

After he purchased the gilt, she "kind of blossomed," said Justin, as he held onto the championship trophy at the Elizabethtown Swine Show on Tuesday evening.

Justin, 20, son of Amos and Pat Good, Lititz, showed his 228-pound purebred Duroc gilt from the medium weight division to supreme champion of the market swine show.



Amy Becker showed the reserve grand champion hog at this week's Elizabethtown Fair.

Henry Holloway, show judge, was just as impressed with the gilt. In the final analysis, there was no question, said Holloway, that the purebred Duroc would be champion.

"I have never used a hog of this weight as a grand champion," he said. "It is one of the best individual hogs that I've seen in a long, long time."

Holloway, a Yorkshire breeder from Darlington, Md., said the grand champion exhibited lots of muscle. Holloway said he "loves the way she comes at me" with a great big loin eye muscle. "She should look really good when she goes to the rail. She'll walk away with the championship at the carcass show."

Justin, a freshman studying agriculture at Penn State, plans to show at Denver, Ephrata, Manheim, and New Holland fairs. He also plans to show at this year's Keystone International Livestock Exposition.

Amy Becker, 14, daughter of Marlin and Nancy Becker, Manheim, showed her 255-pound Duroc cross gilt from the heavyweight division to reserve grand champion. Amy is a freshman at Manheim Central High School.

There were a total of 39 exhibitors and 99 hogs. Following is a list of show placings.

Stoltzfus Siblings Show Champion Steers At E-town

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Jessica and Jason Stoltzfus, daughter and son of Frank and Irene Stoltzfus, of Elizabethtown, showed the grand champion and reserve grand champion market steers Wednesday night at the Elizasbethtown Fair.

Jessica showed a 1,305-pound Angus/Maine Angou crossbred steer she named "Willy" to win the competition. The steer first won its heavyweight division championship.

Jason showed a purebred Shorthorn steer, "Atlas," to capture the reserve grand champion title. He was just able to show the steer before starting college for the fall. He was to have left for Messiah College in Grantham on Thursday.

Judge of the 11-head show was Kevin Diehl, of Fairfield (Pa.), who said that he had just finished observing a steer show that was perhaps 10 times as large. "The quality of animals brought before me today is just as good," he told the young exhibitors.

Diehl farms 500 acres and has a 75-head cow/calf beef operation in addition to a general farming operation. He said he also shows steer and does some judging.

He praised the youth on their accomplishments in raising the animals, and in showing them.

For the Stoltzfus siblings, it was the first grand and reserve grand championship they won with steer.

At their parents farm, which is primarily a swine operation, the children have raised show hogs and sheep and just started showing steer.

Jessica showed the supreme champion at her 4-H roundup last year, while Jason showed the reserve champion market lamb at this year's 4-H roundup, three weeks ago.

There are actually two different competitions held at the local fair. The one that the Stoltzfuses won was for market animals that were to be sold Thursday night. The other was for animals that weren't to be sold.

In the lightweight division of the selling steers, Nicole Hess showed the champion. In the medium weight division, John Boyer showed the champion. Jason's champion was a lightheavyweight.

In the non-selling competition, two animals were exhibited, taking the titles of champion and reserve. Jill Hoffines showed the champion, while Jessica showed another smaller steer for reserve. Jessica said she intends to exhibit that animal at the state Farm Show in January.

In showmanship, the overall showman was Amy Hoffines. Jill and Amy are the children of Robert and Linda Hoffines, of Marietta. Their animal entries were also well praised by the judge.

Amy Hoffines was the senior age champion as well. Jason was second to her in the division, though the judge said it was close.

Jessica Stoltzfus was the champion in the intermediate age division, with Jill Hoffines second. In the junior division, Nicole Hess was the winner, while Chris Hess was champion in the novice division.

Dunwalke Farm Hosts Beef Field Day

FAR HILLS, N.J.—A crowd estimated at 250 turned out for Dunwalke Farm's Beef Field Day, billed as "Beef Breeding Basics—Commercial/Seedstock/Youth," recently at the farm's headquarters.

Visitors took in some outstanding educational presentations offered as practical helps to young and adult cattlemen in their production and marketing of beef cattle. They also had the opportunity to see breeding stock from Dunwalke Farm's nationally-recognized Polled Hereford and Gelbvieh herds.

The afternoon program started with a "Youth Practicum" segment with over 40 youth participating. Dan Wunderlich, sales representative for Brown's Feeds, kicked off the youth activities with a presentation and handout about the fundamentals of balancing rations for specific beef projects and providing adequate water and sanitary conditions.

Dunwalke Farm staff member Danny Ogle gave a demonstration of grooming techniques to make slick and longer-haired beef projects look their best for exhibition.

Dr. Jon Higgins, VMD of Acorn Embryo Services, Inc. shared some reasons why health certificates are required for animal exhibitions—how to plan to have the proper test(s)/inspection completed before the event.

Les Middleton, American Polled Hereford Association field representative for the Northeast, enlisted junior volunteers for a hands-on demonstration of showing practices to help youth be more confident, courteous, and competitive.

Dunwalke Farm provided each junior with a folder of informational fact sheets for beef projects as well as a complimentary nylon show halter for attending the field day.

The adult program which followed began with marketing presentations by Dr. John Hough, vice president-education and research with the American Polled Hereford Association (APHA) and Dr. Jim Gibb, executive director of the American Gelbvieh Association (AGA). Hough discussed the new Certified Hereford Beef (CHB) program. It is an alliance between breeders, feeders, packers, and retailers to provide a consistent, leaner, highly palatable branded beef product to consumers. The program grew out of research indicating that straight and half-Hereford cattle are highly desirable for palatability when compared with other cattle slaughtered under USDA supervision. In the CHB program's first year of operation there is already a demand for an estimated 100,000 head of slaughtered cattle for the branded beef product markets.

Hough will be heading up the performance testing and sire evaluation programs of the American Hereford Association which is in the process of merging with the American Polled Hereford Association. Both memberships approved the merger in June of this year with plans to make the new consolidated association, which will keep the AHA name, operable by Sept. 1, 1995.

The two groups have joined together to provide members with more effective promotional efforts in programs such as CHB and to realize cost savings through economies of size in performing services currently duplicated by each organization. The merger will also make it easier for members to utilize the total gene pool of registered Polled and Horned Hereford breeding stock.

Gibb discussed some innovative programs established by the AGA to add value to cattle with Gelbvieh genetics. As a newer beef breed in the U.S., and less well-known in the Northeast, he told about the breed's origins. Starting in 1850 in Germany, it was developed as a composite breed and then subjected to rigorous culling standards for maternal, calving, growth, and carcass traits. Gelbvieh semen was first imported to the U.S. in 1969 with the breed developing through a breeding-up program and additional semen/cattle importation. It has become one of the fastest-growing beef breeds in the U.S. with over 70,000 active, registered Gelbvieh cows. It is also one of only a few breeds to require performance data for registration. The breed's increase in popularity received a boost when data from the U.S. Meat Animal Research Center (MARC) in 1993 indicated that Gelbvieh-sired crossbred females ranked #1 among the 24 beef breeds evaluated for pounds of calf weaned per cow exposed.

Gibb discussed AGA's Commercial Marketing Program. Special video calf sales have been established for commercial cattlemen's Gelbvieh cross calves resulting in value added because of the demand for the breed's lean growth, feed efficiency, and carcass yield qualities. AGA has also sponsored a rapidly growing number of replacement heifer sales due to the Gelbvieh-cross females' production efficiency. AGA has developed responsive networks with commercial Gelbvieh producers and feeder-buyers to help producers sell feeders directly to feedlots. In 1993, AGA, was approached by Monfort-Con Agra, Inc. to assist in developing a pricing formula for Gelbvieh-sired finished steers for its close trim retail market in order to create a dependable beef product source. In addition, AGA works closely with commercial Gelbvieh breeders on various options for retaining ownership of their calves through finishing which has resulted in increased profitability 8 out of 10 years based on AGA studies.

After the presentations by Hough and Gibb, the field day crowd was divided into three groups that rotated among three sessions for three presentations that were repeated.

Dr. Lowell Wilson, Penn State, discussed storage and utilization of round bales in beef feeding programs. Research indicates outside storage of round bales can result in dry matter loss of 5-40 percent. In the Northeast when bales are stored outside for several months forage loss is seldom below 15 percent. Wilson discussed cost-effective methods of in-barn storage, bale stacking, and outside bale covering to retain feeding value in hay. He also shared information about feeding circumstances where round bale silage and tubed silage may be utilized effectively in a balanced nutritional program. Materials on these topics are available by writing The Pennsylvania State University, Department of Dairy and Animal Science, 324 William L. Henning Building, University Park, PA 16802-3503 and requesting fact sheet #I-112—"Round Hay Bale Storage" and #I-109—"Round Bale Silage."

APHA field representative Les Middleton discusses showmanship practices during the youth practicum segment of the Dunwalke Farm Beef Field Day.

Dunwalke Farm farm manager Howard Hoffman conducted a session on calving techniques. He used pelvic bones and a stuffed cloth calf to illustrate normal/abnormal presentations as well as a calf-puller, snare, and oxygen apparatus for use in assisting with calving problems. He stressed that bull and cow selection can significantly reduce calving difficulty. Dunwalke Farm takes pelvic measurements of its yearling heifers each year and uses these as a tool in the selection of herd replacements. He emphasized the need to also use the expertise of local veterinarians.

In his breeding session, Dunwalke Farm herdsman Nelson Gerlach shared some practices to increase conception rates, save time, and avoid breeding problems. He discussed the farm's conditioning of natural service sires which includes grass as the primary feedstuff so that bulls are gaining weight but adapted to pasture conditions before being turned in with the cow herd. Females are put in a high quality pasture three weeks before the breeding season begins and then in a new pasture when the breeding season starts to stimulate estrus. He compared the effectiveness of younger and older bulls in pasture in servicing females. He covered the usefulness of bull reproductive evaluations, semen testing, and breeding guarantees for purchased bulls. With the use of reproductive tracts from slaughtered cows, Gerlach demonstrated how semen is deposited by the bull and by A.I. in the tract to cause fertilization. He suggested that only early-calvers should be artificially inseminated since a fertile bull remains the most effective way to breed cows for earlier calves.

The Dunwalke Farm Polled Hereford and Gelbvieh herds contain more than 400 head of purebred stock with a commercial herd maintained for the farm's embryo transfer program. The Polled Hereford herd includes a number of sires with Gold Trophy, Gold Performance, and Trait Leader status as well as several national champions of both sexes. The newer Gelbvieh herd includes several Dams of Merit as well as the 1993 and 1994 national champion female. Dunwalke Farm has been breeding registered cattle for more than 60 years.

Hinish Farm Hosts Waste Water Day

HOLLIDAYSBURG (Blair Co.) — More than 130 area farmers, agricultural dealers, and support agencies visited the Rod and Trudy Hinish farm outside Williamsburg on Clover Creek recently for the Milkhouse Waste Water Handling Field Day and Farm Tour. Rod Hinish welcomed the group to the family's 235-head dairy operation and to the field day, which was made possible through a grant from the Pennsylvania Association of Sustainable Agriculture (PASA) and the Blair County Conservation District.

Lyn Garling, coordinator for PASA, introduced the various dealers which were on hand throughout the tour to display agricultural commodities.

Two presentations were made on farm waste water handling and the regulations and handling options. Zeke Brehm, operations chief for the Water Management Program of the Department of Environmental Protection (previously DER), explained the DEP viewpoint. Current law grandfathers old underground milkhouse systems but no longer permits anaerobic treatment of milkhouse water or underground disposal. Once a system malfunctions or when a new system is installed, all waste water must be treated aerobically through surface application.

Rod and Trudy Hinish hosted a recent milkhouse waste water handling field day.

Paul Hoge from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA) explained the regulations that milk inspectors follow when making farm visits. PDA follows DEP standards and Paul explained several inexpensive methods of treatment that are acceptable to both agencies.

Grassed filters and daily applications by hauling with the manure are common ways of handling the waste water aerobically. Adding the waste water to liquid manure storage is also a good way to handle the effluent.

A display provided by the Natural Resources Conservation Service was also exhibited and explained by Robert Clauto, field conservationist and Harold Wareham, technician, who presented two experimental alternatives to waste water treatment via a man-made wetlands or a bark bed.

Following the presentations people divided up into three groups and rotated through three stations to view the Hinish farm and visit the dealers. The Hinish farm offers a variety of new and innovative methods for animal housing, management, and waste handling. Rod and Trudy enlisted the aid of 5-G Consulting from Oregon to design and assist with the goals they had on their farm. This included an open front barn with a flush system and a manure solids separator.

Lancaster Dairy assisted Rod and Trudy with the design and installation of a flat barn milking parlor, which enables them to milk on average 195 animals in 3.5 hours.

For help with the waste handling, the Hinishes participated in the Chesapeake Bay Program for cost-share and technical assistance. This included a milkhouse water transfer system to a reception pit which also collects manure and flush water from his existing heifer barns.

The liquids from the separation process are transferred by gravity across the road to a 10-foot deep, 2.4 million-gallon earthen, clay-lined storage pond. To complete the cycle, 5-G Consulting assisted with the installation of a recycling pump to transfer brown water from the pond to the barns for flushing. Hinishes also demonstrated their reel type irrigation system during the day, applying the manure water from the storage pond to their field corn.

Wagon load of guests at Hinish Field Day travel to ag waste pond.

Dairylea Offers Fixed Price Forward Contracts

SYRACUSE, N.Y.—Dairylea Cooperative Inc. is offering its members a Fixed Price Forward Contracting program that guarantees milk prices weeks or months ahead of time.

Through this innovative program, members have the option of locking into a known value for a portion of their future milk production, helping reduce the "unpredictability" of their monthly milk check.

"The milk price volatility of the past five or more years has had an adverse effect on dairy farmers," said Jamie Zimmerman, Dairylea's director of Farm Management Services. "We developed this much-needed program, which utilizes the hedging tools available in the futures market, as a service for our members, allowing them the opportunity to manage their price risk."

Fixed Price Forward Contracting does not necessarily generate higher than normal milk prices, but creates stability by smoothing out the highs and lows of milk prices, according to Zimmerman. Forward contracts have been used for decades by grain and livestock producers as a way to limit price risk and lock into profitable margins for their businesses.

Under the program, Dairylea calculates daily bid prices—for up to six months in advance—for the Federal Order No. 2 blend prices, based on the daily price levels of the Coffee, Sugar and Cocoa Exchange cheddar cheese futures market.

When a member contracts with Dairylea for a fixed price, the Cooperative then hedges the price movement risk using the cheddar cheese futures traded at the Coffee, Sugar and Cocoa Exchange.

"We decided to offer this program—as opposed to the members hedging themselves—because it's easier for the cooperative to apply the time, management expertise and capital to this endeavor than for the individual members to take the time out of their day," said Zimmerman.

"Since we work for our membership, one of our goals is to develop tools and services that help them improve their bottom line."

A recorded information line provides members with bid prices every business day between 8 a.m. and noon.

If an offered price is attractive, the member can transfer the call to a staff member who will write the forward contract.

Members may allocate up to 50 percent of their historical monthly milk production to a contract, with a minimum allocation of 20,000 pounds, and increasing in increments of 5,000 pounds.

Members may have more than one contract for any one month, given the contracts meet all minimum and incremental requirements.

In the long run, Fixed Price Forward Contracting will help farmers budget easier and achieve more favorable financing terms, added Zimmerman.

"If a farmer is in an expansion mode or looking to borrow money for some other reason, having some amount of their production contracted helps them with guaranteed income. That is an extremely powerful tool to use when approaching a lender, as opposed to just saying 'we think the price of milk is going to be this or that in the future,'" he said.

The Fixed Price Forward Contracting program is among the many valuable financial services and farm management programs available to Dairylea members.

Other offerings designed to impact members' profitability include a member loan program, direct deposit of milk checks, flexible benefit packages, a computer-accessible bulletin board, farm management consultations and analysis, and milk quality assistance.

Dairylea is a Syracuse-based dairy cooperative with more than 2,400 member farms throughout the Northeast. It markets more than 3.5 billion pounds of milk annually and participates and is invested in a milk marketing network stretching from Maine to Maryland to Ohio.

Larry Brol Is Pa.DHIA's New York Technician

Pa. DHIA started a circuit of members in southwestern New York over 15 months ago. A major goal of Pa. DHIA was to put a person out in that circuit who would be motivational, caring, and above all, be willing to go the extra mile for the dairymen.

These qualities and more have been found in Larry Brol of Little Valley, New York. Larry comes to Pa. DHIA with a wealth of experience and knowledge in the dairy industry.

Being raised on a dairy farm and continuing his education in agriculture has allowed him to attain a tremendous amount of knowledge.

Larry attended Little Valley High School and served as president of the local FFA chapter. He also graduated with honors. Then he proceeded to Cornell University to further his education.

After attending college, he returned home to farm with his father on the family farm for 10 years. In that time frame he bought his own farm. Having his own farm, he was able to raise heifers and start his own dairy herd. At that point, he decided to go to work at the local feed mill while milking his own cows.

As time progressed he decided to become a technician for Northeast DHIA. He worked for 10½ years and was responsible for 30 herds. In the mean time, Larry moved on to other interests.

Once again, wanting to get involved with the dairy industry, Larry became a Pa. DHIA technician. Having built his own circuit in New York has allowed Pa. DHIA to expand beyond the geographical area of Pennsylvania. Pa. DHIA currently serves members in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Maryland and Missouri.

Some hobbies that Larry said he enjoys are collecting baseball cards, bowling, country, music, following sports, especially the Cleveland Indians and Buffalo Bills. Larry has a son, Bradley who is attending Jamestown Community College.

At Pa. DHIA we feel that having professionals represent the organization is vitally important. Please feel free to contact Pa. DHIA at 1-800-344-8378, is we can assist in your dairy operation.

Carroll 4-H Livestock Sale Brings More Than $111,000

JOANNE E. MORVAY
Maryland Correspondent

WESTMINSTER, Md.—Carroll County's recent livestock sale grossed nearly $111,500, but the average price per animal was down from previous years, organizers said.

The annual sale offered a few goats and numerous sheep, swine and cattle to businesses and individuals in and around Carroll.

Becky Geiman, wife of sale vice chairman David Geiman, said the number of steers sold at the auction declined this year.

Sheep and swine offered for sale increased, but prices were down across the board, Becky Geiman said.

She said a sudden downpour in the middle of the sale didn't appear to affect prices or sale progress.

Many people left the fairgrounds in droves after the storm about 9 p.m. on Aug. 4. But participants at the livestock sale—one of the long-awaited highlights of the annual fair—"just moved inside, out of the rain," Geiman said.

The champion market goat, owned by Jason Ridinger, brought $1.10 per pound for a total of $71.50. The goat was purchased by Southern States' Westminster Cooperative.

Sheep sales totaled $21,651 for 61 animals—excluding the champion and reserve champion. An average of $2.73 per pound was paid.

The sale was marked by price variety with pronounced differences even between the champion and reserve champion animals.

The grand champion market lamb, shown by Brett Fogle, brought an incredible $11.50 per pound.

Miller Asphalt Products paid $3.50 per pound for the reserve champion—a pair of market lambs exhibited by John Norris.

Thirty-six steers brought $59,792—excluding the champion and reserve. Cattle averaged $1.23 per pound.

Swine brought $28,714, excluding the top two prize winners. Fifty-three hogs averaged $1.95 per pound.

Monica Feeser of Taneytown was the proud owner of the fair's grand champion steer and the grand champion hog.

Her 1,135-pound steer was purchased at $3.25 per pound by Giant Foods of Landover, Md.

Masonry Contractors Inc. paid $5.50 per pound for Monica's 250 pound hog.

The reserve champion hog was sold by Katie Henley for $4.25 per pound to Strawbridge Construction.

The reserve champion steer, owned by Kristen Lewis, went to Frederick County National Bank for $1.50 per pound.

Exhibiting and selling the fair's top steer and hog at the same time was not a first for 19-year-old Monica Feeser.

But landing the honor once more in this, her final year as a 4-H'er, was quite a thril, Monica said.

She has exhibited the grand champion steer five times at the Carroll fair, most recenlty in 1992, she said.

For the past three years, one of Monica's hogs walked away with the county fair's grand champion honors. Monica also brought the champion hog to the fair on two additional occasions.

When it comes to raising winning steers and swine, choosing "the right animal" is the key, Monica said.

"If you have good genetics and the right environment, they're going to grow and produce like they need to," she said.

Monica is well-versed in the importance of genetics.

Her parents, Julie and Franklin Feeser, own and operate Feeser Genetics. The family currently has 200 sows. Their second business, Carousel Angus, has about 60 head of Angus cattle—half of which are Monica's.

Monica has been raising her own cattle since shortly after she began showing beef. Her 1991 grand champion was the progeny of one of her own bulls, she said.

She has alos been showing sheep since her first year in 4-H. One of her animals earned a grand champion at state fair.

But the cattle are Monica's pride and joy "because that's something I began on my own," she said.

Monica starts working with her cattle early in the spring. Once school lets out, she rinses the animals daily and spends even more time getting them used to the halter.

She said she's always played favorites, lavishing attention on the one animal—usually a steer—that catches her eye.

This eyar, Monica missed most of the spring cattle shows due to school obligations. She's just starting her sophomore year as an animal science major at Kansas State University.

Monica said with all that missed time, she expected her steers to be "giddy" at the county fair.

Fortunately, her concentrated work with them these last few months helped keep them firmly in hand, she said.

"I expect the cattle to do well," Monica said. "But I'm still surprised if they do. And if they do, it makes me really happy and proud."

Her success at national shows has not quite caught up with her success at the county level, so when Monica does have a champion steer in the county lineups, "it's really exciting," she said.

She has learned to concentrate so completely that the other competitors melt away and "it's just me and the judge in the ring," she said.

"If the bleachers fell down, I wouldn't even know it," she said.

"And you're sitting there the whole time thinking, 'Oh God, please choose me.'," Monica said.

Monica said she will miss 4-H—the challenge of showing, the support of good friends.

But her involvement with the organization will continue.

Her 8-year-old twin cousins, Candace and Brandy, showed lambs this year and may tackle hogs next year.

An only child, Monica said "It's exciting to me to see that somebody else in my family is taking an interest in 4-H's livestock program."

She plans to continue working with her cousins.

The vice president of the Maryland Junior Angus Association and member of the National Junior Angus Board said she also plans to show cattle with that organization until the group's age limit, 21.

Monica is an active member of the American Angus Association.

In addition, she belongs to Block and Bridle, the campus livestock club at Kansas State, and is an agriculture ambassador for the school.

Wayne County Holds Livestock Sale

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — Outdoing itself this year in dollars, numbers, and in community spirit, the Wayne County Junior Livestock Sale sold 311 4-H market animals.

Local business people, parents, and friends turned out in record numbers to support its youth by bidding on market hogs, lambs, and steers recently at the Wayne County Fairgrounds.

The first animal presented for auction was the 228-pound grand champion hog raised by Shanna Johnson, an eighth grader belonging to the Up North Crew 4-H Club. The hog was purchased by Dr. Henry Nebzydoski, Pleasant Mount veterinarian, for a record $8.50/pound. Nebzydoski announced that he was returning the pig to be resold at the end of the sale to benefit the Gately family, a Wayne County 4-H family recently plagued by health problems. Arthur Gately, the father, is recovering from heart surgery, while Linda Gately, the mother of 4-H'ers Arthur and Anthony, received a double lung transplant during the week of the fair.

As the sale progressed, other businesses and individuals returned a total of 12 pigs and eight lambs for resale for the benefit of the Gately's, the Cavage Kidney Transplant Fund, and the Wayne County 4-H program.

Other champions sold at auction were the reserve grand champion hog raised by Chris Ellis of

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

THOMASVILLE (York Co.) — "Wildcat" was his name, and jumping was his trademark.

"He jumped around a lot," explained Heather Bankert of the seemingly-inappropriate label for a docile-looking, 91-pound, Southdown market lamb.

Wildcat took his most memorable leap at the York 4-H Lamp Roundup, when the judge jumped him to the top of two dozen competitors to claim her first grand champion title for the 13-year-old, six-year 4-H exhibitor. The roundup and sale was held August 14 at Weikert's Buying Station.

The homebred winner opened the lamb sale to spirited bidding, ultimately gaveled off by auctioneer Harry BAchman to the bid of $2.40 per pound, from Service Feed and Supply, Cardiff, Maryland. Heather's earnings from the champion may help fund expenses for the 30 head of market and breeding sheep she owns.

Senior 4-H'er Matt Sellers added yet another rosette to the dozens he has won in his lengthy showring career. Sellers' crossbred, primarily Suffolk with some Hampshire traces in its genetics, was named the reserve champion. The twin lamb was born on February 10, the first lambs to be born at the Sellers' family's Thomasville farm.

Buyer of the reserve, 105-pounder, at $1.70 per pound, was Lebanon Valley National Bank, represented by former York 4-H livestock exhibitor John Eaton Jr.

Sellers and his brother, Adam, pool and split their winnings at the livestock shows, since they generally share the workload of tending the project animals. Matt, now a sophomore at Penn State, credits his younger brother with doing most of the work this season on their combined 11 head of sheep. In his last year of 4-H project exhibiting, Matt plans a career in agriculture and is majoring in dairy and animal science.

Taking champion honors in the heavyweight class was Jennifer Flinchbaugh, York. Her 129-pound heavy brough $1.30 per pound on the auction block and sold to First Capital Wire and Cable Company.

A 94-pound entry took the reserve lightweight class placing for Red Lion shepherd Drew Bankert. D.E. Horn and Company of Red Lion was the buyer at $1.25.

Tabitha Ebersole, York, was the reserve winner in the mediumweight class, with a 110-pound lamb. Buyer, on a bid of $1.25, was Hydro Kirby Agri-Service.

Reserve champion heavyweight class honors went to Michelle Miller, York. Her lamb, at 128 pounds, sold on a 95-cent bid to George and Joan Grim.

The 24 lambs, including the champions, had an average weight of 109 pounds, and sold for an average price of $1.40. Without the champions, the averages were 110 pounds and a $1.45 price. Market sellback price was 70 cents.

A partial list of winners follows:

Class 1: 1. Kelly Jo Bankert, Red Lion; 2. Cody Ault, Hanover; 3. Rick Jones, East Berlin.

Binkley & Hurst Bros. Host Tillage Day Event

ROTHSVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — More than 200 farmers attended a day-long tillage event held Thursday at Binkley and Hurst Brothers, in Rothsville.

Field demonstrations of attachments for managing such things as crop residue, compaction and techniques and equipment for deep tillage, were among some of the items on display.

There were 25 pieces of equipment on display ranging from equipment for small gardner to 250 horsepower tractors, but according to staff, the main reason for the day was to communicate with customers.

Representatives from Gehl, Richardton, Alo, and staff of Binkley & Hurst Bros. gave presentations during the day, but mostly met with people to discuss topics and issues of customer concern.

According the spokesmen for Binkley & Hurst, the goal of the event was to communicate with the customer.

They said that previously, clients would come in an have a tractor in mind, or a piece of equipment. Today, the discussion is about farming concepts, techniques and programs and what kinds of equipment needed to do the job.

Customized equipment is possible today for special needs and on display was a tool designed by Binkley & Hurst staff, made from components from various manufacturers.

The communications today is from the end user to the manufacturer.

Walter Martin, an employee of Binkley & Hurst Bros., prepares to board a tractor to demonstrate tillage techniques during a special tillage day event.

Visitors to a special tillage day event at Binkley & Hurst Bros. enjoy lunch and a chance to discuss their tillage and equipment needs.

Meadville Workshop

MEADVILLE (Crawford Co.) — Workir.g to reverse the decline in family farming in Pennsylvania and in turn contribute to the revitalization of our rural communities, the Pennsylvania Farm Link program is sponsoring a Beginning and Retiring Farmer Workshop at the Crawford County Extension Office, Dunham Road, Meadville, on Thursday, Sept. 7.

The regional workshop will address "passing on the farm" issues, business planning, farm loan resources, marketing ideas, start-up strategies, goal setting, and communication skills. It will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. with lunch on your own.

Participating agencies and individuals include Pennsylvania Farm Link, Penn State Cooperative Extension, Pennwest Farm Credit, Crawford County Rural Economic and Community Development Service (formerly Farmers Home Administration), Integra Bank, and a panel of local farmers. The extension office is located on Dunham Road off of Route 102.

According to Farm Link Coordinator Marion Bowlan, in spite of the decline in family farms in Pennsylvania and the obstacles that deter all but the most devoted, many Pennsylvanians are looking for ways to get into farming and continue with our state's major industry. She cites as evidence the overwhelming response received by the Farm Link program and its beginning and retiring farmer workshops. More than 530 inquiries from beginning and retiring farmers were received since the program's mid-July 1994 start-up, and workshops have been filled to overflowing capacity.

In Pennsylvania and the nation, people are finding it increasingly difficult to acquire the capital needed to enter farming. USDA attributes at least 25 percent of the recent decline in farm numbers to new people not being able to get into farming. At the same time, Pennsylvania's current farm operators are graying.

The average age of a farmer in Pennsylvania is now over 52 and commonwealth farms are disappearing at a rate of 1,000 per year. Many farmers reaching retirement age are having difficulty phasing out of farming while maintaining adequate resources for retirement. Farm Link is looking for innovative ways for retiring farmers to gradually transfer their farms to the next generation while keeping more of the money in their pockets.

Individuals who want to enter farming or farmers considering retirement are invited to attend this workshop. There is no cost to attend; however, pre-registration is necessary. Please call the Farm Link program at 800-9PA-FARM by Tuesday, Sept. 5 to make your reservations.

Community Shows Support At Mifflin Youth Fair

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

BELLEVILLE (Mifflin Co.)—A commendable show of community support enabled the Mifflin County Youth Park Board to reduce its debt from an initial $80,000 just a year and a half ago to $9,000 just before this year's livestock sale.

Heavy snow in March 1994 crushed the "green building" roof, a building that houses non-livestock exhibits.

Auctioneer Mark Glick made this announcement just minutes before the recent FFA and 4-H livestock sale.

Mifflin County Extension Director Dave Filson stepped forward to accept a $300 donation from the Beef Club, raised during a fundrasier to support the cause. Later on that evening, Mark Bonson cast the highest bid on a gallon of milk from the grand champion Holstein shown by Andy Reed. The $185 bid will also be donated to the Youth Park Board.

Hours later, when the gavel fell for the final time, buyers purchased $66,194.62 worth of 4-H and FFA market livestock, slightly lower than last year's record-setting total of $67,772.94.

Beth Ann Cooper's grand champion meat rabbit sold for $65 per pound to Sunny Brook Farm. Joe Krentzman and Son paid $193 for Heidi Shaffer's three and a half pound reserve grand champion. Seven other market rabbits were sold for a total rabbit sale price per pound of $29.75.

Charlie Fisher's grand champion market goat entered the sale ring next, bringing a total of $2.30 per pound for his 72-pound animal. Eugene Glick purchased that animal. Dick Cramer Insurance cast a bid of $2.20 per pound for Salinda Speicher's reserve grand champion goat, a 60-pound animal.

Timothy Blystone's grand champion lamb, purchased by Eastern Industries, went for $478.80 while Beth Pennepacker's reserve champion lamb sold for $3.10 per pound to Watson's Landscaping. That animal weighed 124 pounds.

Vaughn Kanagy's 243-pound grand champion market swine brought a total of $777.60 from Big Valley Feed and Grain. The reserve champion swine, owned by Timothy Blystone, was purchased by Hoss's Steak and Sea House for $642.60.

Hoss's Steak and Sea House cast another winning bid for Josh Bowen's grand champion market steer, earning for him $3,978. This steer was then donated to Hartman Center in Milroy. Vaughn Kanagy's reserve champion steer brought $2,261 from a final bid cast by Juniata Concrete.

The Mifflin County Youth Fair Dairy Show was held in the same ring the previous evening. By the end of the evening, Andy Reed had received rosettes for showing the grand champion Holstein in both the youth and open shows and, earlier in the week, the grand champion showman award. Reed's junior 2-year-old, Reed-Gap S. Buck Enchantment, received supreme champion of the show and was awarded best udder. Perry Meinnert's junior 3-year-old, In-Tim-Idate Super Studette, earned reserve grand champion honors for him in the open show.

Open show junior champion was Chase Peachey of Peachview Farm and reserve junior champion went to Michael Yoder. E-town Sheep Show Selects Sale Lamb As Supreme Champion

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Unlike last year, Brandon Zeigler wasn't being fitted for a leg cast during the E-town Sheep Show. He didn't need to have someone else to show his sheep.

But — just like last year — his sheep was proclaimed the grand champion selling lamb — with one big difference. This year his selling lamb topped champions in the market and breed competitions to become the supreme champion over 248 entries.

The 12-year-old was all smiles. And, his 10-year-old brother Corby who showed the reserve champion market lamb was just as happy.

"We help each other," Brandon said of the six sheep the brothers raise on their neighboring Lititz farm.

The brothers purchased the lambs in Indiana when their dad Dean took a trip with Lloyd Reiff whose daughter Lisa is a consistent winner in sheep competition.

"Lisa is our coach," Brandon said.

Lisa showed the champion market sheep, a heavyweight, with Corby playing the stiffest competition with a middleweight that was named reserve.

Except for last year when Lisa was on a trip and couldn't compete at E-town, she or her brother Lyndon have taken the champion market sheep title since 1990.

Michael Musser showed the reserve grand champion selling sheep. It was only the second year in sheep competition for 12-year-old Michael. He expressed shock that his Suffolk named Sanka placed so well. "She was jumpy and nervous and wouldn't stand still so I didn't think she was still enough for the judge to see how well finished she was," Michael. He is the son of Ken and Linda Musser of Mt. Joy.

Judge Henry Zerbe of Beavertown has plenty of practice with spotting a good sheep. Not only does he raise sheep, but he makes his rounds in judging.

"Every show has an unique personality. This is a good show with a lot of top quality lambs," he said.

Showing grand champions in breeding sheep competition was Keith Bollinger with both champion (ewe lamb) and reserve (yearling ewe) in the Cheviot breed. In the Dorset breed, Ann Leed showed a yearling ewe that was named champion and Jennifer Wenger showed a aged ewe named the reserve. In Hampshire competition, Ann Leed again led with a yearling ewe and Regina Landis showed a ram lamb for the reserve. In the Shropshire class, Amy Bollinger had both champion and reserve with her yearling ewe and ewe lamb. Southdown competition ended with Jennifer Zimmerman's aged ewe at the top and Stephania Kauffman's spring lamb as the reserve. Suffolk competition ended with Keith Bollinger showing a yearling ewe as the champion and his brother Jerry's ewe lamb as the reserve. John Schmidt showed the top Montadale; Amy Haines, the Columbia, and Katie Grosh, a Tunis.

Showmanship was divided into four age groups. Jennifer Wenger led in the 16 and over competition, Regina Landis in the 13-15 year old section; Radell Peters in the 10-12 year old division; and Katye Allen in the 9 and under division.

Jennifer Wenger, the 19-year-old daughter of William Wenger from Lebanon, has been showing for 8 or 9 years. She was a previous showmanship winner at the E-town fair. She used a homebred aged Dorset ewe that was also named reserve champion overall in breed competition.

Fifteen-year-old Regina Landis is no novice in winning. The daughter of Abe and Dottie Landis, has won several times before. The family has 50 bred ewes on their Manheim farm. Judge Zerby commended Regina for using different styles in showing and moving smoothly from sitting to standing positions.

Out of 14 head, Radell Peters picked a Dorset that he had raised from little. The Middletown youth is the son of Ray and Vicki Peters.

Katye Allen may be little but she shows great talent in showing. Already this season, Katye won her second champion trophy for showmanship.

"Katye modestly credited her success to using a Cheviot "because they are easier to show."

She is the 9-year-old daughter of Keith and Kendy Allen of Manheim.

A partial listing of show results follows:

...w Fred and Charlie Counted Six

Fred and Charlie have been on a visit to their uncle's farm. They had such a good time there, and are never tired of telling us about the things they did, and the animals they saw—the cows and horses, the sheep and pigs, the ducks and geese and turkeys.

The first morning of their visit they got up very early, because Uncle Jack had promised to take them for a walk round the farmyard and through the fields. As soon as they had had breakfast, they started out. The first thing they saw was Jimmy, looking at them over his stable door. Jimmy was the donkey. "I should like a ride on the donkey, Uncle Jack," said Fred.

"Very well, we'll see about that when we get back from our walk." But, of course, Charlie wanted a ride, too. So Uncle Jack said they would have to take turns, because there was only one donkey. First Charlie could have a ride, and then Fred, because Charlie was younger than Fred.

The boys were so pleased at the thought of the donkey rides they could talk of nothing else till they had gone quite a long way, and come to a field where old Jake was ploughing. "Whatever is old Jake doing, Uncle?" asked Fred.

"He is ploughing," said Uncle Jack, "making the ground ready for sowing the corn. The field is too big for a man to dig it all with a spade, so it is done with a plough. You can see how the plough turns the soil over, as the horses drag it along. It would be very hard work for one horse, so we put another one with it."

"I know how many horses that makes," said Fred. "Charlie doesn't, because he's never been to school, so he can't count."

"Well, you tell him how many horses it makes, and he'll soon learn."

"Why," said Fred, "one horse and one horse make two horses."

"Quite right. And if you have a ride on the black horse, and a ride on the grey horse, as well as a ride on the donkey, how many rides will that be?"

"Three rides," said Fred. "Two rides on the horses and another one on the donkey make three rides altogether."

"That's the way; we shall soon teach Charlie to count."

By this time they had come to the meadows. "I believe Charlie can tell us how many cows there are standing by the gate," said Uncle Jack.

"Oh, yes!" answered Charlie. "There's one lying down, and another one eating the grass. That makes two. And there's one [illegible]

Love For Dairy Industry Keeps This Former Princess Promoting Milk

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

GAP (Chester Co.) — Charlene Ranck exudes a calm cheerfulness wherever she goes. Her ready smile and unruffled composure are, in part, a product of dairy promotion.

"The dairy princess program taught me to put on a smile and be cheerful around others. I learned quickly to do my best and put forth a good effort for the dairy industry," Charlene said of her reign 14 years ago as the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess.

The former Charlene Rohrer, now married to Merle Ranck and mother of three, continues to put her best foot forward for the dairy industry.

She is the southeast district chairperson for Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc. and on the Chester County Milk Promotion Committee.

Charlene feels a loyalty to the dairy industry that capitulated her from an obscure farmgirl to a spokesperson for the industry.

She recalled that her younger brothers were awestruck when she appeared on the field with the Philadelphia Phillies before thousands of fans and rode on the three-wheeler with the Phillies Phanatic. As the state dairy princess, Charlene quickly learned to always be ready for the camera, to sit properly on stage, and to speak extemporaneously before crowds.

But it was the people she met in the public places that made a lasting impression upon her. "I learned to know and respect people such as Secretary of Agriculture Penrose Hallowell," Charlene said.

Although her public exposure dimmed somewhat after her reign, Charlene never lost her loyalty to the dairy industry.

"The dairy princess program is a grassroots effort that allows one to reach others on a one-to-one basis that large-scale advertising doesn't reach. It's that person-to-person contact to educate people to use butter and real dairy products that makes a difference," she said.

In her role as dairy princess, Charlene said, "It taught me to commit myself to doing something and the need to carry it through. It taught me to get things done and not procrastinate, to stick to it and do it."

Of that appointment, Charlene said, "I feel inadequate to be the one replacing Mim, but if love of the industry and a desire to give back to it makes me capable then those are qualities that I have."

It wasn't that her responsibilities as dairy princess was the only responsibility that she had as a 19 year old. At that time, she had a job and was a member of the Choraleers, a traveling musical ministry of selected teens. Occasionally, time schedules overlapped. Once, when the group was in Costa Rica, Charlene needed to fly back to fulfill a dairy princess commitment.

Although dairy princess commitments often interfered with her social life, Charlene had no regrets. She recognized that the opportunity to promote the dairy industry was worthwhile and an honor.

In many counties, dairy farmers are asked to donate money for dairy promotion, but in Chester County, milk promotion is self sufficient. Charlene's husband built a dairy barn on wheels, which is used to sell milk and milkshakes at fairs and other events where large crowds gather. The barn is transported by a pickup truck with an ice cream freezer. Charlene took a course to become a certified food handler for the promotions. Business is so brisk at some events that six people need to be on duty at one time.

"A lot of dairy farmers and their families volunteer a few hours to help at these events. It's a good way for dairy farmers to promote their product," Charlene said.

The time required to fulfill dairy promotions duties varies from week to week.

"I really enjoy getting out with people and coordinating the events. It's something I can do for the dairy industry," Charlene said.

It's also a responsibility that is compatible with being a mother of three active sons.

"The dairy princess program is a grassroots effort that allows one to reach others on a one-to-one basis that large-scale advertising doesn't reach. It's that person-to-person contact to educate people to use butter and real dairy products that makes a difference," she said.

"I dearly love my children and like being home with them," she said. Derrin is 8, Brent, 7, and Curtis, 3.

The Rancks live in a house they built themselves. Within a five-month time-span in 1985, Charlene and Merle built the two-story house. Charlene hammered on shingles and inserted electrical receptacles in the walls.

Prolific flower and shrubbery beds surround the home that Charlene and her husband built. While the required weeding might overwhelm many people, Charlene enjoys it.

Quilting is something Charlene enjoys doing and her sons are eager to help.

Their home is built on the edge of woodlands next to the organic fertilizer business that Merle's dad started 33 years ago.

Charlene has a quilting frame set up in her living room. While she quilts, the children play with Legos and trucks at her feet.

"Quilting is relaxing to me because it doesn't require concentration," she said.

Most of the quilting Charlene does is for her children's school's benefit sale.

Charlene heads the worship team and is a Sunday school teacher at Andrews Bridge Mennonite Fellowship.

"My life surrounds my family. I enjoy being a full-time mother and wife. Dairy promotion, church work, and helping at the school is important to me and keeps me busy," Charlene said.

Within the last year, Charlene has replaced Mim Kauffman, who retired from the PDPPS board.

Of that appointment, Charlene said, "I feel inadequate to be the one replacing Mim, but if love of the industry and a desire to give back to it makes me capable then those are qualities that I have."

On Being a Farm Wife (and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

"OK, this isn't funny anymore," I muttered to no one but myself.

With that, I hauled myself up off the blacktop, where I'd ungraciously tumbled onto gravel and dust. After gulping down his evening bottle, the bull calf tied in the wagon shed had promptly wrapped me in his bale-string tether. Before I could get away, he'd wrapped the string around my left ankle, neatly tripping me.

It was a fitting flourish to an evening of near-tears frustration.

Earlier, a favorite young cow had calved with a beautiful, big, heifer calf, a perfect, normal delivery. The Farmer would be pleased when he and our son returned that evening, after spending the day together at Ag Progress Days.

In another calving pan nearby lay a large heifer, in early labor. By milking time, she rested with her tail against the barn's block wall, the calf's nose just beginning to show. Knowing she couldn't deliver the calf against the wall, I tried to rouse her. She struggled to her front feet, pulled herself ahead enough to allow birthing room, but her back legs didn't seem to want to work.

Calving, especially for first-time heifers, is difficult on occasion. A hard or prolonged labor may temporarily cause muscle weakness and spasms in the back legs. That appeared to be this heifer's problem. But the calf was in position and delivery seemed imminent.

Shannon, our herdswoman, arrived and fastened delivery cords to the infant's feet; we began to pull as a team. And pull. And pull. Strange. This calf did not appear to be that large. But despite our efforts, we didn't seem to be making much progress.

We tried pulling from various angles in the tight quarters. Both of us at some point examined the cow internally. The calf was where it was supposed to be. It was not too big. But it seemed to be "hung up."

Again trying to move the heifer, we cleared enough room to open one of the pen's wide gates, so we could get some leverage with the strings. By now, both of us found our hands and arms were getting numb from pulling. Shannon speculated the calf might have some deformity we couldn't see causing it to be stuck.

We wrapped the strings around the gate and both leaned our weight into it. The calf appeared to move a bit. With renewed anticipation, we pushed back with every ounce of strength we could jointly muster.

A string tore and we went flying in tandem into the gate, landing in the thick sawdust bedding. This was not getting us anywhere. Meanwhile we pained for this heifer in labor and agonized over our inability to be able to help her. And our vet was away for the evening.

There was little to do but give the heifer some more time; maybe she would dilate further. While we finished up the barn work, we kept checking the heifer. Nothing. Feeding the rambunctious bull calf was the last chore of the evening. His dumping me on the ground seemed befitting to the mood of the moment.

Blessedly, The Farmers arrived home soon afterward and took command. They, too, pulled. And pulled. After about 10 minutes of intense efforts, finally finished the job.

Something HAD been drastically wrong. The bull calf was a month premature, already dead a day or so and beginning to swell with deterioration. No wonder we'd been unable to budge it. Relief that the heifer's ordeal was over mixed with apprehension that she might be permanently paralyzed in the back legs.

Twenty-four hours later, "Fancy" hopped to her feet, found they still worked, and began nibbling at grass outside the barn.

With some time and a little more luck, she might even live up to her name.

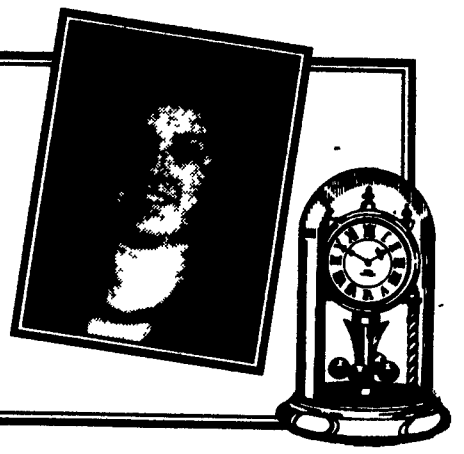
Taking Time by Rebecca Escott



Computer Savvy Consumers

With school just around the corner, some families are considering a major purchase—a computer. When my husband and I finally purchased a computer, it was the end of a long "battle" of wills, needs, opinions, and priorities. The six months that we debated about the purchase were a true test of our marriage. Fortunately, we survived. I got the brand of computer and word processing software that I wanted. He got the "bells and whistles" that he claimed were essential.

Just like not every family needs an anwering machine, not every family needs a computer. But if you've decided that a computer is for you, taking time to become informed before purchasing a product makes good financial sense.

The first step (and maybe the hardest) is to decide what you want your computer to accomplish. If it's a family purchase, guaranteed, different members will have different priorities. Will it primarily be used for writing, calculating, sorting data, doing work at home, graphic design, desktop publishing, communicating with others, entertainment, education, or shopping? Sorting this out in advance of the shopping trip is important! If having a computer to produce your Christmas letter and other correspondence is your main objective that's one thing. If you want to be able to entertain children with the latest animated games, you may need a computer with quite different capabilities.

If you're doing word processing, the speed of the processor is probably not an issue because most computers can keep up with people's typing skills. However, if you search for documents, work with graphics, use complex financial tables, and venture into the newest computer games market, speed will be an important consideration. Consumer Reports recommends selecting upgradeable machines—ones that can have the "latest" capabilities added, so that you can keep up with the industry for awhile. If you currently own a computer and want to upgrade to a new model, choose a processor that provides at least twice the performance of the one you currently use.

Before you buy, read! Consumer Reports did an evaluation of computer hardware last year. And each month a range of computer magazines evaluates the newest models, and features. Check out recent issues at your local library. Familiarize yourself with terms and vendor options.

Second, if your friends or family members own a computer, interview them. Ask what they like and what they would change about the machine they have. Ask why they chose the model they did. Your family and theirs may have very different needs. If you are purchasing a computer for a college student, consider recommendations from the college or academic program. In some cases, it is important to have the right software/hardware to interact with professors, other students, or online services.

Unlike several years ago, the line between Macintosh and IBM-compatible is getting very gray as software and hardware changes are made.

When your family has selected the product that will be best for you, begin to price shop. Check mail-order companies, computer superstores, special price programs through schools/work. But be cautious. Prices too good to be true in ads sometimes are gimmicks. Either, the store is selling the computer at below cost to generate more traffic in the store, or the product is not really what it appears to be in the ad. Maybe the price does not include all the components. Sometimes the hard drive is just what you want, but it's paired with a less-than-adequate monitor. Ask to see the monitor in use to test its readability.

Watch for salespeople that try to steer you into buying an upgraded component that increases the cost of a sale-priced item significantly, especially if the computer has the components you already decided were right for you.

Finally, be sure to read the company's refund and warranty policies. Keep any paperwork that is necessary to make exchanges and to arrange for repairs as needed. Generally, the company's warranty for the hardware is adequate, and extended warranties are not necessary.

Buying the computer is not the only important decision you'll have to make. Selecting the right software is also important. Software evaluator, Mima Spencer, suggests that if children are going to be using the software, have them actually try out the program. Does it occupy their attention repeatedly? Does it foster creativity and ecnourage the child to make choices? Are the directions clear so that the child can operate the program independently? Again, read reviews and compare notes with other parents, teachers, or librarians. The more a child returns to a program, the more you get your money's worth. Also be sure that your computer has the capacity to run the software. This is usually described on the package. Read carefully.

If the software is for you, you try it. If it's for your kids, let them try it. Sometimes what delights a child does not amuse an adult and vice versa.

Taking time to investigate options and communicate considerately about needs will ultimately result in the best purchase possible.

Heather Oberholtzer, Lancaster County Dairy Princess, wrote this poem about farmers.

WHAT IS A FARMER

A farmer is someone with lots of care
Plenty of knowledge and wisdom to share
Up early every morning to greet the cows
With milkers, teat dip, and paper towels
A farmer must be very diverse
Always with an answer for the worst.

Field work is important too
Rain or shine there's always something to do
Whether filling silo or baling hay
A little smile can make another's day
Later in the day it's again milking time
Pulsating milkers sound all in rhymes.

Then when the milking is through
There's something tasty for me and you
This product called milk is delicious and yum
'Cause it's loaded with protein and calcium
At the end of the day, he's tired but pleased
With that pure milk he has squeezed.

Heather writes, "Each farmer in the United States feeds more than 120 people. Why not enjoy one of my favorite farmer's, my father's, main dishes?"

TATOR TOT CASSEROLE

2 pounds ground beef, browned
1 can cream of mushroom soup
½ cup milk
2 cups grated cheese
1 bag Tator Tots
Chopped onion, optional

Spread browned ground beef in a 9x13-inch pan. Mix cream of mushroom soup and milk and spread on top of meat. Sprinkle cheese on top of soup mixture. Line the top with Tator Tops. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes.

10 ELEGANT HERBS

This is the fourth in a series of articles on growing and preserving herbs in the home garden.

The top nine herbs grown by home gardeners are chives, basil, rosemary, lemon, verbena, oregano, sweet marjoram, parsley, French tarragon, and thyme. We'll take a closer look at several of them this week and next.

Basil, Sweet (green) and Purple

Grown as a tender annual from seed. Basil likes the warmth of full sun to grow best. Purple basil, lacking chlorophyll, is more susceptible to shock in the early stages.

Sweet green basil can be dried, frozen in ice cubes, or used fresh. Blended with pine nuts, oil and cheese, this basil is the prime ingredient in pesto. It is also good for making flavored vinegar for salad dressing, or suffused in oil for flavored oil. Purple basil is best used fresh for salads, and for making flavored vinegar. In the garden, purple basil is a colorful contrast to annual flowers, and its color is useful in cut arrangements.

There are several forms of chives, but the most common one has roundish leaves that are used for their onion-like flavor. This perennial has lovely purple flowers made up of masses of florets.

Chives

Chives also like full sun and rich soil. They can take partial shade, but will not grow as fully erect. The leaves die back in summer's heat, but may return ifl the fall. Clumps should last four to five years before dividing.

Chives can be harvested for fresh use in salads and recipes. Cut a few leaves to the base, but don't shear the whole plant down to the base or they won't be able to manufacture food for the roots. The flower heads can be used to make chive vinegar, and the flowers can also be dried. To dry the flowers, put them in an open paper bag. Don't tie the stems together or they may rot instead of dry.

Chives can be dried by snipping the leaves as you would for a salad, and then placing them on a fine screen or nylon mesh in a warm place, out of direct light. Stir regularly for several days. When dry, seal in jars.

Lemon Verbena

Lemon Verbena is a tender perennial that is best purchased as a growing plant. In the garden, it needs full sun and temperatures above 65 degrees F for best growth. Lemon verbena leaves can add a fresh flavor to fruit salads or beverages, but they are best removed before serving because the leaves are very difficult to chew. The leaves can be dried by placing them on a screen or mesh in a warm place out of bright light. The dried leaves can be used to make a tea.

Oregano

Origanum vulgare and its cultivars are the familiar forms or oregano. This is a perennial hardy grown in the garden in full sun.

Oregano can be used fresh, but is most often dried. To dry, cut the stems to the base just as the plants come into flower. Place tips down in a paper bag. Tie the bag around the stems and hang in a warm place. Check for drying after two or three weeks by rubbing the bag between your hands. If you hear leaves falling to the bottom of the bag it is ready to be opened. Strip the leaves off the stems and finish drying in a 100 degree oven, checking frequently. Let cool, and then run the leaves through a coarse screen before bottling. If saving whole leaves, be sure to remove any bits of stem.

Oregano is used in a wide variety of cooking, in addition to sprinkling it on salads and pizzas.

Brillion introduces their new Compaction Commander... designed to break up hardpan and compaction as deep as 20". The standard V-shaped alloy point and wear strip leaves residue on the surface with minimal soil disturbance. Auto-rest shanks with 20" of trip height allows for non-stop tillage. Parabolic shanks lift and fracture the soil. 39" of underframe clearance assures trouble free operation even in heavy residue.

BRILLION THREE SHANK DEEP TILL has a Category II hitch. With a cutting width of 7'6", it is ideal for operators with smaller acreages and horsepower. It is extremely maneuverable, yet provides the same basic deep tilling job as its "big brother." Available with coulters.

Rodeo Raises Money For Injuried Riders

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

SHARTLESVILLE (Berks Co.) — Brandy Crago is a rodeo rider with a mission. She performs trick riding at The Old Timers Benefit Rodeo to raise money for injuried riders. On Sunday, August 27 at 2 p.m., Brandy will team up with Shane Lattimer of Lockwood, N.Y., to provide rodeo entertainment at the Shartlesville Mountain Resort.

Brandy Crago thrills crowds with her stunt rodeo tricks. Since recovering from a serious injury, Brandy is back to performing. This Sunday, she will perform to raise money for other seriously injured rodeo riders.

Brandy got hooked on becoming a stunt rider when she watched a rodeo in Bucks County in 1980.

She took stunt lessons for two weeks and practiced for a year before she became a professional trick rider.

Her popularity took her to rodeos across the U.S. and Puerto Rico. She spent six months performing with Circus World in Florida and enjoyed five seasons at Frontier Town in New York.

In 1993, Brandy was one of three trick riders selected to work at the National Finals Rodeo in Oklahoma.

"Safety has always been an important factor in this kind of work," Brandy said.

Despite Brandy's cautions, two years ago, her horse fell on her while performing a stunt.

A crushed lower back and pelvis required one month of traction at Albany Medical Center.

It was tough for Brandy to be confined to total inactivity. She was surprised and encouraged to find out that her rodeo family did not forget her. She received a check to help with medical and personal expenses.

Nine months after the accident, Brandy was back on the saddle and performing at rodeos.

But she never forgot the despair of laying on that hospital bed and the encouragement she received from her rodeo family.

She said, "Their thoughtfulness was such a blessing to me and my family. We are thankful to so many people who care and to God for such great healing."

Brandy repays the debt she feels by helping other injuried riders by doing what she is best at — stunt riding.

The benefit performance is put on annually to raise money for the Rodeo Contestant Crisis Fund (RCCF).

Tony Tice, who helps organize the benefit, said that unlike most professional athletes, rodeo cowboys and cowgirls do not belong to teams or have trainers or team doctors. Professional rodeo riders pay their own entry fees and expenses, and when a ride goes bad, their own medical expenses.

In 1992, George Bell a world champion steer wrestler had an accident on the way to a rodeo. He is paralyzed and in a wheel chair. Through the help of the RCCF, Bell went to a saddle and harness making school in Oklahoma and has established his own business in Virginia.

Bell will be at the rodeo and ride with the aid of a special saddle, which he designed and made himself, and compete in team roping.

In addition to lots of rodeo action, the benefit rodeo will also feature door prizes and fun events for the whole family.

The rodeo will be held at Shartlesville Mountain Resort located off Exit 8 on Route 78. Performance begins at 2 p.m. Admission is $5 per person. Children 5 years and younger are free. All proceeds go to benefit the Rodeo Contestant Crisis Fund.

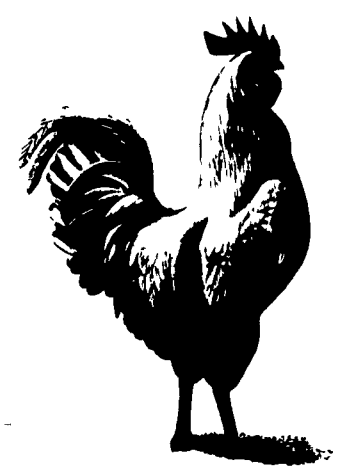
Chicken Stuff

LITITZ (Lancaster) — It wasn't too long ago that every farm had a handful of chickens wandering around the barnyard, providing food and some entertainment. Although raising chickens has changed greatly, they remain a big part of American life. They're a big part of our diet, our humor, and our language: a bad egg is a bad person; hen tracks means messy handwriting; cocky means arrogantly self-confident; get one's hackles up means to anger someone; being chicken means being afraid.

Read on to learn more about the wonderful chicken.



DID YOU KNOW?

●All chickens are descended from the wild Red Jungle Fowl, which was tamed more than 4,000 years ago by people in southeast Asia and India.

●Today there are more than 100 breeds of chickens.

●One Leghorn chicken can lay 300 white eggs each year.

●The flaps of loose skin hanging down from the throat of a chicken is called wattle. The pink skin on top of the chicken's head is called a comb.

●Chickens don't fly far because their wings are short and weak and their bodies are too heavy.

●Chickens must eat lots of green vegetables for the vitamins and minerals and to make their yolks yellow. They need calcium to make the shells for the eggs.

●Chickens swallow stones that are stored in their second stomach, or gizzard, where they grind food.

●Chickens bathe in dry, dusty dirt, which keeps them cool and helps get rid of parasites.

●When chickens are raised for eating, they are fattened quickly and kill ar nine weeks of age.

●Wild chickens would lay a clutch of eggs and wait for them to hatch. On modern farms, eggs are taken away immediately, which keeps the hens laying eggs. A wild chicken only lays about 50 eggs each year.

●Chicks cheep constantly to let their mother know where they are.

●There are approximately 2,300 million chickens in the United States.

●Chicken feet are shipped to Taiwan and other Oriental countries where they are considered delicacies.

●Rock Cornish hens come from crossing a Cornish chicken with the Plymouth Rock chicken.

●Dwarf chickens are called bantams.

●Chickens sleep or roost on a perch. Their toes lock on so they won't fall when they're asleep.

●A young hen is called a pullet; a young rooster is called a cockerel.

●Pullets start laying eggs at five months, but none are fertile until one year.

●A rooster crows to tell rivals to stay away from his territory.

Consuming Thoughts

by

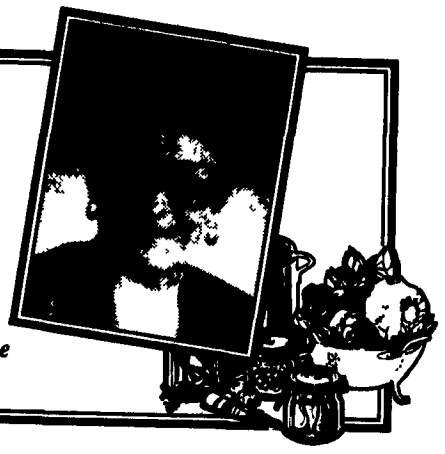
Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.



Did you know that a zesty marinade can turn ordinary cuts of meat, vegetables and seafood into mouth-watering masterpieces.

Marinades are flavored liquids that enhance or add flavor to foods. They usually contain an acidic liquid such as citrus juice, vinegar or soy sauce, along with seasonings. Marinades can be added to meat, vegetables and also add variety to seafood. Although the distinctive flavors of fish and shellfish are always delicious when prepared simply, occasionally you might like to vary them. Marinades should be used to enhance the true flavor of seafood, not to mask or overcome it.

Any seafood can be marinated, but fish, shrimp and scallops are the most popular.

Marinating times vary with foods. Since seafood is more tender than meats, it requires less time. But marinating times also differ among seafood. For example, fish such as flounder and snapper require less marinating time than firmer fish such as catfish and grouper.

If marinated too long, fish undergo a change in texture. For instance, if a flounder was placed in a marinade containing both soy sauce and wine and was left in the liquid too long, the fillets would be mushy and unappetizing when cooked.

Always use a non reactive container for marinating, such as glass, stainless steel or a plastic bag. Some metals can combine with ingredients to produce a chemical reaction or an undesirable flavor.

Unless the pieces are too large or there is too much quantity, plastic bags are really convenient for marinating seafood. You can turn them over instead of turning the food.

Always marinate seafood in the refrigerator, never at room temperature. Fillets may be marinated skinless or with the skin on. It's a personal preference.

Pan-dressed fish take longer to marinate and many need to be turned more often than fillets. When marinating dressed fish, make several slits on each side.

You may have noticed that many recipes for marinated food suggest grilling as the cooking method. A citrus marinade is a perfect combination for grilling seafood fillets, and easily adapts to the grill.

And since this is the seaon for grilling, you may want to switch to the grill for any seafood recipe that calls for broiling or baking, unless the instructions specify a topping that would not adhere or that would burn in the grilling process.

When grilling seafood baste it at least once or twice. Remember to reserve marinade for basting before it comes in contact with raw food. Do not use the same liquid in which the seafood has marinated.

If you use a marinade that does not contain oil, you may want to brush the seafood lightly with oil or melted margarine when grilling or cooking in the oven. If so, do so sparingly.

Never reuse marinades. They may contain harmful bacteris that can cause illness.

When planning summer menus raw, crisp-tender, or canned vegetables marinated an hour or two will spark up any meal. Flavor choices are abundant — from the traditional favorites such as Thousand Island, French, and Italian, to the newer ones like green goddess, creamy cucumber, buttermilk, and garlic and herbs.

Any pourable dressing works as a marinade, so try them all! Be creative and vary the taste even more by adding Worcestershire sauce, soy sauce, mustard, a little wine, fresh herbs, spices, or some other personal touch.

Immunize All Pets For Rabies

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—Secretary of Agriculture Lewis R. Riley reminds all farmers to make certian that their cats and dogs are immunized for rabies and that unwanted strays are eliminated. Recently, two cases of rabies were reported in barn cats in Frederick County. In the state, 14 rabid cats and 2 rabid dogs have been reported.

"Unfortunatley, these cats in Frederick County exposed 10 people who required treatment. It is imperative that we get full immunizations to prevent this type of exposure in the future," Riley said.

"Anyone who has any questions, should contact their local veterinarian or the Maryland Department of Agriculture's Animal Health veterinarians at our central office in Annapolis or at one of our five animal health laboratories around the state," said Riley.

Numbers for the Maryland Department of Agriculture's Animal Health offices are as follows: Headquarters Office in Annapolis (410) 841-5810; Centreville Animal Health Lab (410) 758-0846; College Park Animal Health Lab (301) 935-6074; Frederick Animal Health Lab (301) 663-9528; Oakland Animal Health Lab (301) 334-2185; Salisbury Animal Health Lab (410) 543-6610.

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

"I don't consider myself competitive, but . . . "

Kirsten Kauffman shrugged, moving some of her long, blond hair from her eyes, moments after winning the top 4-H honor last week at 4-H Achievement Night at the Farm and Home Center.

Kirsten, 17, daughter of Ken and Margaret Kauffman, Elizabethtown, was honored as 4-H Superior Achievement Award winner during ceremonies in front of her 4-H friends and family. Kirsten, a senior this year at Elizabethtown High School, was already thinking about her next competition — scheduled the very next day at the District 6 Horse Show at the Lebanon Fairgrounds.

Kirsten was honored for her involvement as president of the Saddle Stiches Club. She recently competed in the Solid Gold Futurity competition, working with Chincoteague ponies.

Kirsten also works with her weanling colt and a 6-year-old.

But she said she derives special satisfaction in working with the younger members of 4-H.

"Working with the new kids and seeing them achieve is really great," she said.

Kirsten enjoys the challenge with "all aspects of 4-H.

"You have to working for something in the program. 4-H is not like school assignments. You have to set goals for yourself."

The 4-H'er became involved in the county 4-H program through a friend, Heather Oberholtzer, and the Saddle Stitches 4-H Club.

Kirsten said that she enjoys competition at the state level. Last year, she won a national award for public speaking. She plans to show sheep at the Elizabethtown Fair.

Kirsten, a four-year member of 4-H, wants to attend college to major in English. She is a copy editor on the school's yearbook staff.

Also honored at the event were the senior honor roll members, Maggie Strausbaugh, Tracy Bollinger, Kirsten Kauffman, and Durelle Leaman. Herr Family Produces Three State FFA Officers

Is It In The Genes?

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — The influence of older siblings is widespread in many families. But in Tonya Herr's case, evidence of her siblings' influences has resulted in her being named Pennsylvania FFA president.

She is the third member of her family to achieve a state FFA office. Her brother Duane was south central vice president in 1985. Three years later, a sister Dawn became state secretary.

The family is thrilled that their youngest sister of six children now carries the leadership torch for FFA.

Tonya said, "It all began when my brother was a state officer and held meetings with the other officers in our home. I used to serve refreshments to them. And I wanted to grow up to be like them."

Tonya has only the highest praise for the organization that taught her to talk both on a one to one level and on a group level, how to set goals and achieve them.

"I am a state officer 365 days a year. 24 hours a day," Tonya said. "I might not be in a conference but FFA business is always running through my mind. There are letters to write, articles to do, plans to make. "

Her goal for the organization during her leadership is to see each member become more active and for an increase in membership.

Of the three-day quest for a state position, Tonya said that she concentrated on the words, "I can. I can."

It wasn't a time to compare herself with the other 26 candidates or a time to feel inadequate or fearful of unknown responsibilities.

During the rounds of interviews, Tonya said, the candidates do not petition for any particular office. Instead it's up to the panel of judges to decide which offices the selected candidates would best fill.

Six rounds of judging were held during the three-day convention.

"I didn't receive any hints from my brother and sister, but I did prepare for some of the questions that we were told would be presented," she said.

She prepared a two to three minute introduction of herself, which was followed by a round of questioning.

During the third round, the committee judged the candidates on group dynamics. The candidates were divided into groups in which they needed to successfully build a plane company.

The fourth round required candidates to speak about national dues or international programs.

The fifth round dealt with world issues.

For the sixth round, 11 candidates were called back in for questioning. These 11 turned out to be the candidates selected for national office.

But it wasn't until the following day that the officers were announced before the general assembly of the state convention.

Darla admits to being in a bit of shock to hear that she was chosen as president. She said, "It did not matter to me what office I was selected to hold because I knew that we will all work together as a team."

As typical of the trend of the organization's membership, Tonya is not from the farm, nor does she pursue production agriculture.

Another surprise, Tonya is a graduate of a school that dropped the ag program the year she graduated.

Although Tonya lives in Dauphin County, she transferred to Annville-Cleona High School in Lebanon when the Lower Dauphin School depleted their ag program.

The year she graduated — 1995 — is the last year Annville-Cleona offered an agricultural program.

In fact the program was being phased out during her high school years, which resulted in a shuffle of teachers and five different FFA advisers during high school.

She isn't complaining about the lack of continuity and the difficulty of adapting to each of the teacher's different emphasis. Instead, she said, "I am the result of the strengths of all four advisers. I'm where I am today because of my background in FFA."

During high school, Tonya held chapter and county leadership positions. As a junior, Tonya was the chapter's vice president and the county sentinel. In her senior year, she was again chapter vice president and county president.

Darla points to the certificates hanging on the wall of her parents home. Each certificate is an honorary certificate for being a parent of an FFA officer.

Although a member of the Little Duchman FFA Chapter in Lebanon, Darla lives in Dauphin County with her parents, Robert and Ruthanne Herr. She transferred to Annville-Cleona because Lower Dauphin phased out their FFA program. Ironically, Annville-Cleona High School also phased out their FFA program the year Darla graduated.

Is it in the genes? Darla Herr, Pennsylvania FFA president, is the third family member to hold a state FFA office. Her brother Duane was the 1985 south-central regional vice president and her sister Dawn who was 1988 state secretary.

As Tonya grapples with her new role and the challenges that face it, she said, "There is some way to get across to schools that agricultural education needs to be included in a school's curriculum."

While a bit uncertain on how to convince schools of the need for ag education, she continues to search for a way to promote ag education through FFA's presence in high schools.

Tonya has excelled in public speaking contests, with a special emphasis on conservation.

She attended the national FFA convention in both her junior and senior high school year.

Tonya and the other 10 officers have selected the theme "Triumphs of Tomorrow Start Today."

They hope to convince students of the necessity to start today to reach tomorrow's goals.

Each of the 11 state officers are assigned 17 chapters to visit during the next year. They hope to spark enthusiasm for the FFA program.

Tonya works for Zoo America Wildlife in Hershey. As the FFA president, Tonya will be unable to continue to work full time, but said that the company is agreeable in working with her schedule.

She plans to concentrate on FFA responsibilities this year and then attend a two-year college to major in accounting and later to land a job with an agriculture business.

Somewhere along the line, she'd like to attain one year's work experience in Germany.

"That, too, is following her brother's example.

Tonya's dad, Robert Herr, was a former FFA member. While in high school, he concentrated on production agriculture, but is proud that his children have honed leadership skills through the program.

"If I were back in school, I think I'd get more involved," he said.

Robert and his wife Ruthanne have six children who range 18 to 36 in age.

While in school, Darla was also a member of Future Business Leaders of America and vice president of her church youth group.

"But my main emphasis has always been FFA," she said.

Although she isn't making the decision yet, Darla said that after this year is completed, she might run for a national FFA office.

Those winning words: "I can, I can," will continue to be instrumental in shaping a positive, confident attitude within Tonya as she leads the state FFA chapter.

The words, "I can, I can," continually play in Darla's mind as she tackles new responsibilities as the president of the Pennsylvania FFA organization.

Sausage Patties Help 4-H'ers Raise Funds

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — If you want to raise money for a cause, look at what the Berks 4-H Swine Club did last week.

4-H'ers, leaders, friends, and family helped set up a stand at the Kutztown Fair to sell sausage patties for the club.

For the first time, the county swine club rolled out the charcoal barbecue pit, set out the helpings, and worked in one-hour shifts to raise money for the club.

The money will be used on field trips, tours, shows, and to allow members to learn more about 4-H and raising swine.

On Tuesday last week, 4-H'ers, leaders, and friends offered fairgoers a pork sausage sandwich with pork donated by Hazle Park Packing, Hazelton.

For $3, 4-H'ers offered fairgoers a complete meal, including pork sausage sandwiches with all the helpings, choice of pint drink (from Wayhar Farms), and chips (from Jonathan Zwiezig).

Mike Hartman, 4-H Swine Club leader, said the first-time event was working toward its goal of 300 sandwiches.

When the night was over, 4-H'ers sold enough sausage patties and raised $450 for their club, according to Lolly Lesher, ag publicity coordinator for the fair.

"It's a good way for the club to promote their own products," said Lesher. "People at the fair appreciated the high quality and flavor."

Lesher said the smell of sausage throughout the fairgrounds drew visitors to the stand.

Other clubs are planning their own commodity nights at future fairs, according to Lesher. Already there are plans for a "lamb kebob" at next year's fair. Next year, the club will once again sell sausage patties at the Kutztown Fair.

In all, 18 4-H members worked on four-man shifts toward raising funds.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

For years, I have said, "No thank you" to people who offered me old canning jars. But this month I said that I'd take some that were offered as I have canned 110 pint of pickles so far. There is no sign of the patch slowing down from their 100 cucumbers every day—so far over 2,000. Yes, I counted them as I washed them. Now I must remember to give some away.

Then as I trudge up the hill to the house with my buckets of produce, I can look forward to filling some of those boxes of empty jars. My problem is that I do not like working late into the night as I feel that daytime hours should be sufficient.

Last week, as a gift from our children, we saw a play "Singin' In The Rain" at the Three Little Bakers Dinner Theatre in Delaware. The food was delicious and the entertainment interesting. One surprise was when my name was announced and I was given a belated birthday cake from the management. It is nice to have dessert on hand during these busy days of peaches, tomatoes, beans and cucumbers.

It is late in the season, but I finally got around to putting more houseplants in the garden. However, I couldn't believe all the weeds that had grown in the one open area as I had hoed it just 10 days before. It is always nice to have flowers in the vegetable garden as it makes the backbreaking work a bit easier. So, as I work my way slowly to the end of the row of baby lima beans, I'll stop and look at my row of cosmos, zinnias, and gladiolas that are planted close by.

Family Of Cousins Compete At Bedford Fair

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — For some the Bedford County Fair might be a lot of hard work.

But, for the Gables, Sniders, and Clarks of New Enterprise and Imler, it's a big family reunion.

Their families have been coming to the fair for nearly 40 years and it looks as though the kids will keep up the tradition.

This year's gathering included Aaron and Kendy Gable, children of Berneta (Snider) and Brad Gable of Snider's Homestead Farm in New Enterprise.

Amber Clark, the daughter of Beth (Snider) and Richard Clark, lives about a mile from the Snider Homestead Farm and was given her first calf by her Aunt Berneta. Since then, she's been raising her own small herd.

Kristi Snider and Jan Snider are the children of Birch and Cathy Snider, part of the original Snider clan.

Another cousin, Mark, also comes from New Enterprise.

Then, there's the other side of the mountain cousins from Singing Brook and the Obie Snider farm. They include Greta, Nora, Ross and even little Rachel, aged two. They are the children of Lori and Bruce Snider of Imler.

"We have fun," the girls giggle. "We look forward to it every year even if it is a lot of fun."

To confuse newspaper reporters even further, the cousins show three different breeds of cattle.

Aaron, 15, sticks to his Guernseys, having won two Supreme championships in the past two weeks.

Kendy, 11, was given a Jersey several years ago and since then

Mini-Seminar Instructs Young Promoters

PENN STATE (Centre Co.)—Youth can best teach youth. This principle was well illustrated on July 28th at Penn State's Ag Arena when six of Pennsylvania's most recent state dairy royalty conducted an intensive one-day Training Seminar for younger dairy promoters.

Reigning Pennsylvania Dairy Princess, Natalie Welch and her two Alternates, Rachel Tanis and Melissa Bicksler, were joined by last year's state royalty, Jennifer Grimes, Amy Mearkle, and Marci Harnish in teaching the industry and facts and "how to's" of dairy promotion to about 70 dairymaids, ambassadors, and junior promoters from all areas of Pennsylvania, even one young woman from Japan.

Sponsored by Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc., this seminar is designed to give these younger "promoters in training" the necessary information and tools to help them in their job of representing agriculture and the dairy industry and its products in their home counties throughout the state.

In three 50-minute workshops and two general sessions, the royal representatives addressed the following topics: "The Basics-Cows, Products, Industry Facts and Nutrition;" "Speaking and Interviews-Fun not Fearsome;" and "My Image-What to Wear, What to Do and How to Do It." "How Not to Do It" was portrayed in an entertaining skit by the currently reigning state royalty at the final general session. Animal Welfare and "How We as Farmers are Perceived by the Public" was covered in a general session by Brenda Coe of Penn State's Animal Science Department. And a session on local promotion ideas was conducted for the 30 adults in attendance by Betty Reibson, PDPPS Assistant Program Director.

Food Dehydrators — Another Way To Preserve Food

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Drying foods may not be an exact science, but with the tips, recipes, and information offered by Alletta Schadler, Lebanon County extension director, dehydrating foods will taste better and be easier to do.

Two workshops were held recently at the Lebanon County Extension Service, where several items were available for sampling.

For those who have not picked out a food dehydrator, studies show that a model should include a fan to move the air around and eliminate moisture as quickly as possible. The dehydrators have several shelves that stack on each other. Somes units are sold as a base starter and additional shelves may be added as desired.

Drying times depend upon the moisture in the food, the thickness and quantity of food, and surrounding humidity conditions.

Food must be dried completely to keep food at room temperature. If it is not stored in air-tight containers, food may pick up moisture in the air and spoil or mold.

Package food in air-tight plastic bags and refrigerate for longer storage. Freeze if you want to keep the food beyond two to three weeks.

To keep fruits from browning during drying, Schadler said, "Buy the cheapest brand of vitamin C available. Dissolve 3,000 mg of vitamin C in 1 quart of water. Soak fruit such as apples or peaches in the mixture. Blot dry, and place in dehydrator."

She, and many others, do not mind eating browned fruit. In fact, many think the browned food tastes more appealing.

Apples that are peeled, cored, and sliced ¼-inch thick takes between 6 to 12 hours in a dehydrator. To test for doneness, squeeze slice in hand. If the apple slice springs back or unfolds, it is dry.

Fruit should be firmly ripe for best drying results.

When using bananas, use solid yellow or slightly brown-flecked bananas. Avoid bruised or overripe bananas. Peel and slice ¼-inch to ¾-inch thick, crosswise or lengthwise. Dip into mixture of 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ¼ cup honey, and ¼ cup water or ascorbic acid or pineapple juice. Dry 8 to 10 hours in dehydrator.

Several books are available on dehydration. One of those available is "So Easy To Preserve," published by the Cooperative Extension. For a copy, send $10 to the Cooperative Extension at the University of Georgia, Athens, GA 30602.

BEEF JERKY

1½ pounds lean ground beef
¼ teaspoon onion powder
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
2 teaspoons brown sugar
¼ teaspoon freshly ground pepper
1½ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon liquid smoke, if desired

Crumble ground beef into mixing bowl. Add remaining ingredients; mix thoroughly.

Form mixture into a ball. Divide into quarters. Place one quarter at a time on 7-inch wide strip of waxed paper. Stretch meat to form log shape the length of paper. Top with another 7-inch strip of waxed paper. With rolling pin, carefully roll to evenly spread meat to cover surface paper. Remove top piece of waxed paper. With sharp scissors, cut strips of jerky on paper into ¼-inch wide strips. Turn jerkey-side-down onto drying trays, keeping meat in a single layer. Peel off paper. When trays are filled, set dehydrator at highest setting (145 to 150 degrees) for 3 to 4 hours or until jerky is leathery but not crisp, turning jerky over once. Cool jerkey between paper towels to absorb surface fat. Refrigerate or freeze.

BEEF AND POULTRY JERKY MARINADES

Teriyaki Marinade

1 cup soy sauce
2 crushed garlic cloves
2 teaspoons crushed or ground ginger root
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 teaspoon pepper

Combine and mix the above ingredients.

Barbecue Sauce Marinade

1 tablespoon oil
¼ cup dried onion flakes
¼ teaspoon dried garlic, powdered
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon chili powder
½ teaspoon dry mustard
2½ tablespoons brown sugar
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
8-ounces tomato sauce or 2 tablespoons tomato powder plus 1 cup water
½ cup dry red wine vinegar
¼ cup lemon juice

Family Of Cousins Compete

has built up her own prize-winning herd. She also does well with her own Guernseys.

Aaron would be happy if she forgot the Jerseys.

Snider's Homestead also has a few Holsteins.

Amber, 13, the cousin from up the road, showed a Junior Champ, two reserve Junior Champs, and two Reserve Grand Champs, all Guernseys, between the Bedford County Fair and the Morrison's Cove Dairy Show.

Jan and Kristi do well with their Guernseys which are also a part of the Snider Homestead Farm.

Nora, Greta, and Ross stick to the Holsteins, a tradition at Singing Brook.

Snider's Homestead, founded in 1892, has 250 cows milking about 90.

Singing Brook, which broke off from Snider's, was founded in 1941. They have more than 400 Holsteins and milk about 175.

All of the cousins belong to the Southern Cove 4-H Club. "In fact, we are just about all of the club," laughs Greta. "We hold most of the offices."

Aaron, Jan, Kristi, and Amber are in the Northern Bedford County FFA. Ross belongs to FFA at Chestnut Ridge.

Jan, Amber, and Aaron have all participated in the All American Show at Kentucky.

The cousins attend the Morrison's Cove Dairy Show, the Bedford County Fair and the Pennsylvania State Farm Show.

"We work hard but we do have fun," beams Kendy who is known for her fabulous smile.

Dear Friends of the Clinic for Special Children

We are again asking for your support and donations of saleable items to sell at the 4th Annual Benefit Auction on Sept. 16, 1995, at the Leola Produce Auction site on Brethren Church Rd, Leola, PA

All proceeds will go to the Clinic for Special Children, a non-profit organization, with Dr. Holmes Morton as the attending physician. Dr. Morton has taken a special interest in several hereditary diseases. By testing all newborn babies of high-risk percent-age, he has been able to prevent irreversible brain damage of many of these young children The same tests that are done at the clinic for $35.00 would cost $350.00 to $400.00 at major medical centers, making these tests too expensive for many parents The costs of owning and operating this laboratory equipment are huge, but with the funds from this annual auction the clinic has been able to offer this service to their clients at a price that is affordable by the average parent.

You may contact any of the following for more information or, if you wish, deliver your donation to any of them Thank you for your support.*

Cook's Question

ANSWER — Linda Fields, New Oxford, wanted a recipe to preserve eggplant so that it can be enjoyed all year. She also wanted a book on home canning. Editor's Note: An excellent up-to-date home canning book is available from the Penn State Extension. Contact your local extension office to purchase a copy. The extension also has many free hand-outs on home canning directions.

Thanks to Estella Lentz, Jonestown, who recommends the Ball Blue Book for home canning and freezing instructions. Write for it at Alltrista Corp. Consumer Products Co., Consumer Affairs, 345 S. High St., Muncie, Ind. 47305-2326.

Thanks to Josephine Matenus, Dallas, for sending a recipe for eggplant.

Stuffed Syrian Eggplant

2 pounds English walnuts, ground
2 tablespoons salt
12 cloves garlic
Olive oil

Remove stems from eggplants. Wash eggplants. Place in pan filled with water. Press eggplant with an inverted dish until water reaches dish. Cook on medium heat for 30 minutes, egg plants will soften slightly. Remove eggplants and place under cold running water. When cool, dry thoroughly. Slit each eggplant on one side. Squeeze until all water is removed. Set aside for 30 minutes.

Mix together ground walnuts and salt. In slit end of each eggplant, place one teaspoon walnuts and 1 clove galic. Press opening closed. Place tightly in jar. Cover and leave until following day. If any water appears in jar, drain. Fill jar to halfway mark with olive oil. You will notice the oil will rise in jar for 3 to 4 days. Keep an eye on the jar occasionally to see that oil does not spill over. When oil decreases, add more oil to keep eggplants soaked. Keep jar covered. Eggplants will be ready to eat in a week.

ANSWER — Julie Garber Smith, Millersville, wanted recipes to use in a cast-iron cookie mold. Thanks to Marian Mosemann, Summit Hill, for sending recipes. She also writes that she would be happy to answer any questions regarding the process. Call her at (717) 645-5852. In order to prevent cast iron cookware from rusting and to give it a nonstick finish, it needs to be seasoned. To season, coat the entire cast iron piece with solid shortening. Wipe off excess shortening and bake in a preheated 200 degree oven for one hour. If rust develops, or if muffins stick, repeat.

Scotch Shortbread

1 cup butter, room temperature
¾ cup confectioners' sugar
2 cups all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon vanilla

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Cream butter, blend in sugar, gradually. Add flour gradually and vanilla. Press mixture into a greased cookie mold and bake in the center of a moderate oven for 15 minutes or until light brown on top. (Be careful, these brown very quickly near the end of the baking time). Let shortbread cool in molds 5-10 minutes before removing. May decorate with colored icings.

Gingerbread

⅓ cup honey
¼ cup plus 1 teaspoon sugar
¾ teaspoon ground ginger
Dash ground allspice
Dash ground cinnamon
2¼ cups all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
Pinch salt
1 egg

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Combine butter, honey, sugar, ginger, allspice, and cinnamon into a small saucepan. Stir over low heat until sugar is dissolved, allow to cool. Sift flour and baking soda into a large bowl, add salt, egg, and cooled honey mixture. Knead until dough is smooth. Cover and let set overnight at room temperature. Grease pan and firm dough into molds until they are just full. Bake at 375 degrees for 12-15 minutes. Allow to cool 10 minutes before removing from mold.

Swiss Cookies

14 tablespoons unsalted butter
½ cup confectioners' sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 teaspoons lemon juice
2½ cups flour

Preheat oven to 450 degrees. Beat butter until light then beat in the confectioners' sugar. Add vanilla and lemon juice. Mix in the flour until the dough is smooth and stiff. Do this with your hands. Press into mold. Bake at 425 degrees for approximately 8-10 minutes or until golden brown. Makes 2 pans of molded cookies.

DON'T FORGET PROPER MANAGEMENT DURING DOG DAYS

The "dog days" of August may have you thinking about simply relaxing and enjoying the successes of the year so far. However, there are many areas where you need to maintain vigilance in order to continue to harvest top quality fruit and vegetables now and into the fall.

So while you slow down a bit, don't stop or the pests may gain the upper hand!

Fruit

As a result of the different weather patterns in the past few weeks, there have been observations of many apple trees whose leaves turn yellow and then abscise. This is believed to be a physiological disorder. The problem is aggravated by a cool, rainy period of 4 to 5 days which is followed by several hot sunny days. There may be 2 to 4 distinct waves of yellowing and leaf drop.

There were indications that the use of the EDBC fungicides helped reduce the problem. Since we are now under a restricted use of these materials and don't regularly apply them in cover sprays, this disorder may be occurring more frequently.

Tufted apple budmoth (TABM) populations are starting their second generation and the counts of larvae are much higher than normal in field observations made in the Adams County area. The months of August and early September are critical for control of this generation. Use at least 100 gallons of water per acre in sprays to get thorough coverage. Larvae in the calyx end of harvested fruit could result in rejection or downgrading so be sure to control this generation of TABM.

Although market forces are the primary determinant of peach prices, the quality of fruit certainly influences price, buyer satisfaction, and repeat sales. Growers should try to use measures that preserve fruit quality during harvest and transport of fruit. Avoid rough handling of fruit and travel over roads that are in poor condition. Do not use speeds that cause excessive movement of fruit during transport. Grade farm roads to eliminate bumps and potholes. Use suspension systems and reduce tire air pressure on transport equipment to reduce fruit motion.

You've worked hard to produce quality fruit—don't let transportation problems reduce your returns!

Vegetables

Corn earworm immigration is continuing to build in southeast Pennsylvania. Fall armyworm immigration has also started. Catches of European corn borers are also still high in our area. All of this means that spray intervals need to be at 3 to 5 days.

Historical records indicate that immigration of corn earworm and fall armyworm will continue to increase as we approach fall.

The return of warm weather to our area again decreases the chances for late blight development on potatoes and tomatoes. However, Dr. Alan MacNab at Penn State still believes that we need to be aware of the potential for this disease to develop rapidly under ideal conditions.

While high temperatures may slow spread and development, late blight is probably present in many more fields than we are aware of, especially below dense vines, and likely will appear when wet, cool conditions develop.

Fungicide applications should be made at maximum intervals of 14 days during hot, dry weather and the interval decreased appropriately when the weather changes. While neighboring states have had major crop losses due to late blight, here in Pennsylvania we have not. You, the growers, most likely deserve the credit for containing blight so well.

Fruit rot controls on pumpkins can be "applied" before and after planting.

"Before" planting controls include crop rotations and variety selection. "After" planting control is the use of fungicides. Two fungicides used for control of rots are Benlate and Bravo. They need to be applied starting at first fruit set and continued through the season at 7-10 day intervals. Control is fair; by Halloween the occurrence of rot should only be 50 percent of that in untreated fields.

If you have a good market for pumpkins, the applications should be worthwhile because the fungicides help insure quality fruit for the longest period possible.

More Families Accepted Into Century Farm Program

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Lewis R. Riley has announced that since inducting 35 farm families into the Maryland Century Farm program last year, 11 families have been accepted into the program during the first six months of 1995.

"Our Century Farm program is continuing to generate a lot of interest. As a farmer, I am extremely gratified to learn about the families in Maryland who continue to pass the family farm tradition down to the next generation. I think honoring these Century Farm families is not only a tribute to past contributions, but also an investment in the future of Maryland agriculture," said Riley.

Governor Parris N. Glendening will present a special certificate and a sign to be put up on the farm to all the new honorees at a ceremony later this year. The Maryland Century Farm program was established to honor families whose farms have been in the same family for more than 100 consecutive years, contain at least 10 of the original acres, and gross more than $2,500 annually from the sale of farm products.

The new honorees include farm families from Carroll, Cecil, Dorchester, Frederick, Garrett, Kent, and Wicomico counties.

"We are still accepting applications. I urge all those who think they may qualify as a Century Farm to apply," Riley said.

Applications may be obtained from the Maryland Department of Agriculture, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, MD 21401, (410) 841-5882, or from local Cooperative Extension Service offices.

Century Farm Families include:

- Carroll County—John and Illona Hull and Helen and John Totura.
- Cecil County—Dorothy and Delmar Farmer.
- Dorchester County—John and Suzanne Trice.
- Frederick County—Paul and Val Jean Bussard and Merhle and Thelma Ramsburg.
- Garrett County—Harold and Helen Harris.
- Kent County—Walter B. Harris, Louise Lusby, and Harry and Elizabeth Williams.
- Wicomico County—Raymond and Joyce Adkins.

Northeastern Conservationists Sample Conservation Measures

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

SEVEN SPRINGS (Somerset Co.) — It wasn't surprising to have the afternoon itinerary go awry, timewise at least, when the conservationists of the Northeast got their chance to hobnob with a few conservationist farmers in Somerset County — farmers quite at ease on their own turf, or more correctly, in their own barnyard. They were Tom Croner of T. Rich Inc., Berllin and Bill Yoder, of Meyersdale.

Snyder of Berlin's potato chip factory was toured, too.

Rolling into T. Rich, Inc., on a David Enterprises tour bus, the capacity group was joined by T. Rich partner Tom Croner, to circle behind the building complex to the site of a recently constructed manure storage pond.

Climbing the slope to peer into the partially-filled lagoon that's capable of holding 2.5 million gallons, Croner drew some laughs with an old joke about Somerset County, to introduce the purpose of the unit to his guests. The county has two seasons — winter and the Fourth of July.

An exaggerated truth, perhaps, but the gamut of weather conditions which brings rain and ice to the region can play havoc with farming, not the least of which is managing the manure systems during all types of weather.

The pond at T. Rich has an inlet and an outlet so that liquid can be pumped in or drawn out from the bottom if necessary to help dissolve ice in the manure reception pit near the barn, some 300 feet away.

"We're still learning, logistically, how to handle it," said Croner. "It was designed to hold manure from 200 cows for one year. We can grow and still manage the system." Right now the triple-partner Holstein dairy is milking 180 cows and selling to Sani-Dairy, Johnstown.

Croner said the large land bowl serves two purposes. It eliminates the need for the farmer to spread manure daily and it helps dissolve ice in the reception pit during the cold season by pumping warmer liquids out from the bottom.

Thus, the farmer can empty the lagoon on a day that's environmentally friendly, a day where rain or melting snow won't wash it into anybody's clean water supply. He'll opt to do it when he can follow up by working it into the soil immediately.

Environmental concerns get high priority at Croner's.

"We strive to be environmentally friendly," Croner said. Speaking for all farmers, he said, "We need to take a proactive role and project the image that we want to project. We don't want people to see us as the enemy."

Croner's other partners are his dad and his son, both of whom are named Richard.

The senior Richard Croner started the operation in 1941 with 147 acres and lost a 100-acre crop the first season. He rebounded, however, and gradually added to the acreage. Today the men own more than the 1,000 acres they till.

Some 45 acres comprise the 30 paddocks for rotational grazing of the herd. Each is 1.5 acres.

Potatoes grow on 140 acres and a sizeable precentage of them are sold to Snyder of Berlin, another host of the tour and its guides, Phil Sheets, Somerset County soil conservationist and Tom Calvert, regional agronomist whose specialty is grazing.

Terry Miller, district manager for the Bedford County Conservation District and a coordinator of the Northeastern Regional Conference of the National Association of Conservation Districts, also accompanied the tour from the Seven Springs Mountain Resort.

The Snyder potato chip operation was born in 1947 and today employs 250 persons. In recent years the focus has been to recycle its waste nutrients in a manner that will benefit the land. Composting is the next step the Snyder plant intends to use for its wastes, officials said.

Bill Yoder, center, Meyersdale tells visiting conservationists that his intensive rotational grazing method starts with dairy cows, then dry cows, and last, shared grazing of young heifers and sheep.

Participating in the conservation tours for the northeastern conference of the National Association of Conservation Districts held at the Seven Springs Mountain Resort, Somerset County, are, from left, Terry Miller, district manager, Bedford County; Bill Yoder, Meyersdale farmer; Tom Calvert, regional agronomist; and Phil Sheets, Somerset County soil conservationist.

A busload of conservationists attending the National Association of Conservation District's northeastern conference are listening to speaking Tom Croner, Berlin, standing in the foreground.

At Bill Yoder's farm, along the Rockwood Road outside of Meyersdale, the conservation methods the group heard about were obviously the brainchildren of a progressive thinker.

Yoder doesn't fear moving away from the beaten track. He decides for himself if another method of doing things will garner greater economic, ecological and time savings and still increase his livestock's productivity.

Intensive rotational grazing has stuck for the Jersey dairyman who saw the method prove itself when he began in 1984. This year he also tried "grazing maize" and concluded that it's "ridiculous."

"I'm glad I did it, he told the group surrounding him on the scenic knoll near the barn. "It could be an alternative to drought-stressed corn, buy my personal opinion is there are better ways."

That's because dry matter was lost when the animals left an 18-inch stalk.

Yoder said his conservation mindset really kicked in back in 1980. A childhood memory was the catalyst — a memory of haywagons tipping over on a particular hillside that he's turned into a grazing paddock.

Each of 20 acres is a paddock, separated by a portable polywire fence. Dairy cows are grazed first, followed by dry cows, then the young heifers and 75 sheep which graze together. In fact, they were sighted together in a distant paddock.

With a herd of 40 to 45 cows, Yoder said his goal is to have them freshen between September and November so they are the largest possible size during the fall grazing season. He isn't speculating how soon it will happen.

The seven-year rotation of crops is Yoder's choice — corn, two years; barley, one; and grass, four. He contour farms in 80-foot sections. The 150-acre farm has 70 acres of cropland.

Yoder stays away from using supplemental nutrients as much as possible. He told the group that milk production goes down when the cows go on pasture but that loss is justified by the lowered expenses.

"The expenses we save stay constant, but we lose more milk," he said of his protein-producers.

Yoder added that although two Jerseys are needed to produce what one Holstein does, the two smaller cows will require less feed by 25 percent than the big black and white one.

First Aid, Safety Imperative

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — As harvest time rolls around, the Lancaster County Chapter of the American Red Cross wants to remind farmers that now is the perfect time to enroll in basic first aid and CPR courses.

The courses can be designed specifically for the unique needs of community farmers, with tips on how to quickly treat mishaps that might occur while working.

Farm owners and managers should be aware that the courses offered by the Red Cross are a valuable way to train farm employees. The Red Cross will accommodate both large and small farms by coming out to your site with all of the materials necessary.

Skills such as bandaging and rescue breathing are taught and practiced in the courses. In the event of an emergency, knowledge of first aid and CPR can often prevent serious injury and, even more importantly, save a life.

Red Cross instructors are available to teach the courses at any time that fits your working schedule. To learn more about the programs or to set up a date, call Ron Shuma at the Lancaster County Chapter of the American Red Cross at 299-5561, ext. 143.

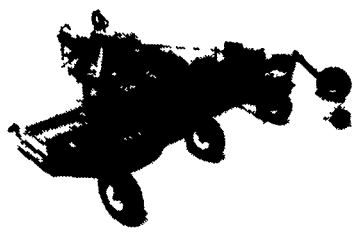
Cutters Have Three, Four Gearboxes

SELMA, Ala. — Bush Hog's new economy flex wing rotary cutters for 1995 come in three and four gearbox models to match farmer needs.

"The new 2315 and 2415 set a new standard in economy flex wings with features that deliver superior performance and reliability in pasture mowing and mowing around crops and other small acreage," said Robert O. Moore, Bush Hog's vice president, sales. "With a choice of the three gearbox 2315 or four gearbox 2415, these new cutters illustrate the benefits of Bush Hog's focus on putting support line equipment first in its product development and product support."



Bush Hog's new economy flex wing rotary cutters for 1995 come in three and four gearbox models to match farmer needs.

Both of the new flex wings feature twin leveling rods for consistently level cut, maximum wing flotation for mowing rough or hilly areas, open clutches to promote moisture evaporation, and cast-iron clevis that rotates 360 degrees to prevent twisting of the tongue.

Row Mulcher Saves Time, Labor

BIRD-IN-HAND (Lancaster Co.) — Millcreek Manufacturing Company has introduced a unique machine that helps small farmers eliminate hand labor for applying organic mulch to row crops such as berries and grapes.

Organic mulch helps suppress weeds, reducing herbicide use, and aids moisture retention. The new Millcreek row mulcher applies wood chips, composted pine bark, and other types of spreadable organic mulch to row crops, in a 24-inch wide row pattern.

The new machine also applies compost to help increase fertility.

The Millcreek row mulcher applies organic mulch in rows for crops such as strawberries and blueberries.

The Millcreek Row Mulcher comes in three sizes — 3.0 cubic yards, 4.5 cubic yards, and 6.8 cubic yards. It is PTO operated and includes a 10-year guaranteed floor.

The Millcreek Row Mulcher allows operators to stay about one and a half feet from rows during application to avoid plant damage. The two smaller models are 62 inches wide to fit between most rows. The largest capacity model is 80 inches wide. Millcreek additionally builds custom row mulchers for special needs.

Swine Premix Registered For Breeding Herd

WHITEHOUSE STATION, N.J. — Merck AgVet, a division of Merck & Co., Inc., announced approval by the Food and Drug Administration to expand the use of Ivomec° (ivermectin) Premix for Swine Type A Medicated Article to breeding stock. Previously, the product wa approved for growing pigs weighing up to 220 pounds.

Ivomec Premix for swine controls both internal and external parasites. Company officials cite the product's broad-spectrum of parasite control, wide margin of safety, and convenience as the most important benefits for pork producers.

"This expanded use of Ivomec Prfemix for Swine allows producers to use this product in their entire herd, without having to resort to time-consuming injections or a combination of convential in-feed dewormers and potentially hazardous topical sprays," said Edward A. Boraski, VMD, senior director of U.S. technical services for Merck AgVet.

The formulation of Ivomec Preix for Swine remains the same. It is formulated at a 0.6 percent concentration of ivermectin (Type A Medicated Article) and is labeled for the in-feed control of a broad-spectrum of internal parasites, including six species of adult worms and four species of immature worms. The product also kills two major external swine parasites — sucking lice and sarcoptic mange mites.

Company Sells, Distributes Alfalfas

LANDISVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — In an exclusive agreement reached with W-L Research, Inc., Hoffman Seeds has become the franchise distributor of WL Alfalfas in the East. The agreement gives Hoffman exclusive marketing rights from Virginia through the New England states, a 12-state area overall.

"WL is dedicated exclusively," said Fred Lepley, executive vice president of Hoffman Seeds, "to breeding quality alfalfas. The addition of their line to our proprietary line will provide our customers with the most formidable alfalfa offering in the East."

Two WL alfalfas will be available in the fall, with another two varieties being added in spring. Product can be purchased from existing WL dealers as well as through Hoffman's sales outlets.

Fall varieties include WL322HQ and WL323.

In tests conducted by Purdue University, the University of Minnesota, Michigan State University, and the University of Wisconsin, 322 HQ delivered major advantages in terms of relative feed value, crude protein, digestibility, and milk production. It is particularly recommended for dairy farmers seeking higher milk production. Tests by the University of Wisconsin indicated potential income advantages of more than $17,500 a year for producers with 100 cows.

WL323 produces high yields, while providing disease resistance and consistent yields even under tough soil conditions. It is highly resistant to bacterial and fusarium wilts, which can cause yield reductions and contribute to severe stand loss. WL323 is also highly resistant to phytophthora root rot and anthracnose, a disease that can reduce forage quality, yield, and stand life. This variety also is distinguished by superior, multiple pest resistance.

WL ProGrazer and WL252HQ will be added in the spring.

WL ProGrazer is a dual purpose alfalfa adapted for both hay and pasture feeding systems. It demonstrates good persistence and yields under grazing conditions. In trials it produced 12.3 tons per acre yields, with 72 percent stands. Its closest competitor produced 58 percent stands over the three locations and 22 grazing periods.

WL252HQ offers the same quality forage and milk production capacity of 322HQ, but with improved winter hardiness for the colder climates of northern Pennsylvania, New York, and New England. In tests conducted by the University of Wisconsin, its winter survival rate was more than 70 percent compared to its nearest competitor at 65 percent.

CFS Introduces New Waxy Corn Hybrids

MOMENCE, Ill. — Custom Farm Seed (CFS) has introduced five new waxy corn hybrids, 91-95 RM/95 MN to 116-120 RM, for the 1996 growing year.

Their introduction results from recent and continuing expansion of CFS research program and staff and nearly 25 years of proprietary corn breeding efforts.

Many cooperators have previewed these new CFS hybrids in their custom selection system (CSS) plots. The 2½ -acre plots use new advanced technology to minimize planting and harvesting time while offering side-by-side comparisons of up to 60 hybrids planted in replication.

The hybrids are:

- CFS W3552, 91-95 RM/95 MN, gives farmers a tough competitive hybrid. Along with excellent yield potential in varying soil types, it has excellent seedling vigor for use with conservation tillage practices. CFS W3552 responds to high fertility.
- CFS W4457, 100-104 RM/105 MN, could be a bin "buster" for producers. Top yield potential combines with fast dry down. Good for conservation tillage, CFS W4457 works best in rotation with soybeans.
- CFS W6454, 110-114 RM, can be a true total performer. CFS W6454 offers high yield potential with fast dry down, is a good choice for conservation tillage and should be harvested when ready. Based on current CFS research, CFS W6454 performs best at a plant population of 26,000 plants per acre.
- CFS W7880, 114-118 RM, gives producers a top choice for high yield ennvironments. Highest yields are potential under irrigation. CFS W7880 responds to a high fertility program, delivers good stalk quality, and is best adapted to the western Corn Belt. Based on current research, it performs best at a plant population of 28,000 plants per acre.
- CFS W8081, 116-120 RM, gives farmers a full season hybrid with exceptional yield potential. It pairs excellent stalks and roots with good grain quality and test weight. In CFS W8081, producers will find excellent disease resistance and stay green ability. This promising new hybrid can be widely adapted to the soils of Missouri and Nebraska.

EPA Approves Seed Treatment

DALLAS, Texas — The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has approved registration for immediate use of Raxil (Tebuconazole), a new small grains seed treatment.

When used in combination with Thiram, Raxil-Thiram offers one of the broadest disease protection spectrum on the market, according to Glen Karaffa, product manager at Gustafson, Inc., manufacturer/marketer of the new seed treatment. The product is available through commercial seedsmen and conditioners.

"The broad spectrum control provides growers with confidence in their investment," Karaffa said, "but most significantly, field trials have also proven Raxil-Thiram is quite simply, for the money, the best product available for smuts and bunts."

Field trials have demonstrated Raxil-Thiram, a flowable fungicide, provides good-to-excellent control of general seed rots as well as wheat loose smut, common-bunt, barley loose smut, barley covered smut, barley stripe and soilborne fusarium.

Manure Tank Holds 7,500 Gallons

WATERLOO, Iowa — Balzer Inc. has introduced a new 7,500-gallon liquid manure tank.

The new unit, available in top-fill, slurry or vacuum models, features 5-inch diameter hardened steel truck spindles on the heavy duty Magnum undercarriage, full ¼ -inch steel tank and domed ends with submerged arc welding to assure seam quality, ¼ -inch steel interior baffles, and full-length tank skids that bolt to the undercarriage.

Vacuum tank uses the proven, powerful Battioni Model 8000 pump with seven vanes and positive lubrication. Pump is available in 1,000 or 540 RPM models, PTO or hydraulic drive. Vacuum tank also features primary and secondary shutoff, 6-inch hydraulic rear valve and manual side valve standard, in-tank agitation system, and adjustable spray deflector assembly.

Tractors Ideal For Small-Acreage Needs

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — A 22 HP tractor is being introduced by Belarus Machinery Inc.

The Model 200 and 220 tractors, equipped with a 22 horsepower, two-cylinder air-cooled diesel engine, are ideal for lawn and garden, small acreage crops, landscape, vineyards, orchards, and applications.

"The Model 200 and 220 tractors are designed for small acreage applications," said E.W. Muehlausen, BMI manager of operations. "They provide more power than a lawn tractor, yet they are smaller and less expensive than a typical utility tractor. Both models fit the needs of many applications."

To maximize productivity, the Model 200 and 220 tractors come with a 16 forward and eight reverse speed transmission and a transmission-driven 540/1000 RPM power take-off (PTO) for heavy-duty tillage and harvesting applications.

Results Of Sale Announced

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center has announced the results of Pennsylvania's 17th Performance Tested Ram Lamb and Invitational Ewe Sale.

The ram sale was the highlight of the day's events, which included the Pennsylvania Sheep Producers Field Day. The activities began with Dr. Tom Drake giving a presentation on "Internal Parasites and Other Interesting Health Problems in Sheep." Dr. Lester Griel then presented a demonstration, "Ultrasounding Ewes for Pregnancy." During the noon hour, Jim and Joanne Evans presented a working dog demonstration.

In the afternoon program, Dr. Dan Deaver reported on "Induction of Estrus in Anestrous Sheep."

A video on Cesarean section in ewes made available by Dr. Tom Merritt was viewed informally throughout the day.

The sale began at 3 p.m. with 71 registered bidders from seven states actively bidding on the 40 rams and 34 ewes offered for sale. The 40 rams averaged $293, a 37 percent improvement over last year's average of $214 on 37 rams.

Twelve fall-born Dorsets sold for $2,860, averaging $238.

The top-indexing fall-born Dorset was bred by Steve Hinkel and sold to Francis Searer for $210. Two fall-born Dorsets sold for $360; ram bred by Nix Besser Farm was sold to Thomas Hopkins of Georgetown, and a ram consigned by Penn State University was sold to N.R.E. Enterprises of Mt. Solon, Va.

Eleven spring-born Dorsets grossed $2,440. The top-indexing and top-selling Dorset was consigned by Dan Heilman of Ford City. This growthy, muscular ram sold to Steve Hinkel of Millerstown for $400.

The single fall-born Suffolk in the sale was consigned by John Hall of Chestertown, Md. and was purchased by Thomas Hopkins of Georgetown, for $900, the top bid of the day.

The 14 spring-born Suffolks grossed $4,545, and averaged $325. The top-indexing Suffolk was bred by David Cole of Waynesburg and sold to David Harting of Newport for $400. The top-selling spring-born Suffolk, bred by Lyn Lee Farms, of State College, was sold to Joseph Alackness of Roulette for $775. The second-highest selling junior Suffolk was consigned by Double Scott Farm of Princeton, W.V. The winning bid of $475 was offered by West Virginia University.

The lone Hampshire ram was consigned by Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Brubaker of Robesonia and sold to Jeff Brown of Port Allegheny for $800. The lone Oxford ram was bred by Jeffrey Everett of Upper Black Eddy and sold to Ralph Harris of Tyrone, for $175.

Thirty-four purebred ewes were sold for a total return of $7,440, an average of $219. The 26 Dorset ewes averaged $226. The eight Suffolk ewes averaged $197.

Patz Belt Feeders Adapt to Your Setup

Feed one to six lots different rations.

End loading can minimize conveyor investment. You can even convey and feed with one machine to save time and money.

Choice of 12-inch or 16-inch belt. Concave trough carries more feed.

THINK CONCRETE WHEN PLANNING YOUR FEED STORAGE!!

"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

The major costs on dairy and livestock farms are related to FEED: production...harvesting...storage...purchases...delivery to animals. Significant savings in time and money are possible when you store and deliver your feed from a poured concrete silo.

"As margins narrow, dairymen need to invest in efficiency: This can have as great an influence on Profit as milk price changes."

Protect your valuable feeds from rain, sleet, snow, mud, ice, wind and the sun's heat. Reduce the stress. INCREASE THE EFFICIENCY OF YOUR FEEDS, LABOR, AND LIVESTOCK!

At Sollenberger Silos Corp. we know a lot about feed storage and handling; we've been in the business since 1908. If your plans call for new feed storage, give us a call...We'd like to contribute to your success!!

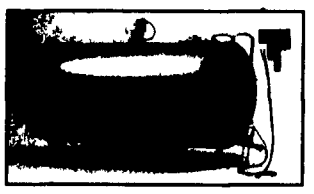
MUELLER DAIRY FARM EQUIPMENT

Scroll-Compressor Technology

New in 1994



You may pay less for some dairy farm equipment... but it can cost you more!

Equipment prices are not the only cost of cooling milk.

In the long run, total operating costs of a Mueller® milk-cooling system are generally substantially less than those of "bargain-brand" milk-cooling equipment.

Example	Mueller	Competition
Cost of equipment	$31 000	$28 000
Cost of electricity @ 08 kW for 12 000 lbs milk/day for 10 years	$17 550	$22 850
Total operating cost for ten years	$48 550	$50 850
Savings	$ 2 300

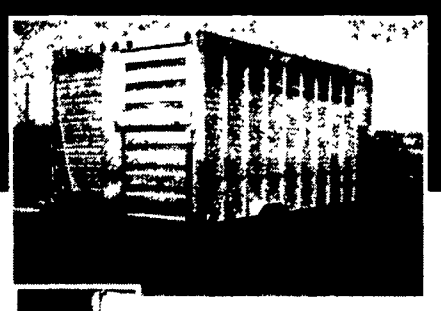
Agriculture Moves on EBY Bodies



M.H. Eby custom-builds aluminum truck bodies for the agri-transportation market. Nobody offers more sizes and options in:

- LIVESTOCK BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of heights and widths.
- GRAIN BODIES - Lengths to 24'; landscape and general purpose dumps to 12'.
- FLATBED BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of 5 widths.

For greater payload capacity, Eby's aluminum design is equal in strength to steel and up to 40% lighter. Our corrosion-resistant components never need painting. That means minimum maintenance, improved appearance and higher resale value.

Eby products have superior standard features. And we offer custom options for virtually any application. Agriculture is your business- building bodies to haul it is ours.

Let EBY custom build one for you.

Field Day To Highlight Community Composting

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — Seven Stars Dairy, Kimberton CSA vegetable farm, and Kimberton Waldorf School are all located within a few hundred yards of each other in upper Chester County.

Each composts a combination of farm and community wastes products and recycles them into valuable resources for the farm and garden. On Saturday, Sept. 23, from 1 to 4:30 p.m., they will open their doors to show how they do it. This field day will be of interest to consumers, farmers, students, teachers, and municipal leaders.

"The opportunity to show a variety of ways that farms and communities can work together to recycle their organic wastes was just too good to pass up," said Cary Oshins, composting specialist for the Rodale Institute, who is working with both of the farms.

Seven Stars Dairy, which milks about 60 cows and produces its own brand of yogurt, has been composting for eight years. In 1993, David Griffiths, the farm manager, started working with the Borough of Phoenixville, on arranging to receive all of their fall leaves to mix with his manure for composting. He also applied for federal assistance to build a large composting pad and water retention pond, so the composting would not affect the nearby French Creek. Finally, in the fall of 1994, Griffiths received 500 tons of leaves from the borough.

Most of the composting is done the traditional way of using a manure spreader to mix the leaves and manure, and using a bucket loader to occasionally turn the long piles, called windrows. In 1994, Griffiths agreed to be one of four area farmers to work with Oshins on a research project funded by the USDA to evaluate a low-tech, no-turn composting system called PAWS, or Passively Aerated Windrow System. The PAWS method uses perforated pipes at the base of the pile to increase air flow through the pile. "With the traditional turned composting method there always seemed to be a portion of the pile at the bottom that didn't compost," said Griffiths. "With all the other chores on the dairy, I don't have the time to turn the piles more often. I wanted to see if these pipes could be the answer."

The September 23 field day will start with a basic explanation of the composting process, and then examine the two methods of composting in use at the dairy. Following that the tour will continue at the innovative vegetable farm of Barb and Kerry Sullivan, who will explain how composting fits into their operation.

The Sullivans operate their farm as a form of Community Supported Agriculture, or CSA. In a CSA, families or individuals agree to pay a share of the cost of farming to the farmers before the season starts. In return, they receive a share of the farm's produce once or twice a week. The Kimberton CSA is one of the oldest in the United States and supplies produce to about 140 families from June through December. Last year the Kimberton CSA started supplying its members with special biodegradable "food recycler" bags, so that members' leftover kitchen scraps could be returned to the farm. The Sullivans incorporate these wastes into their compost piles. The Kimberton CSA is farmed biodynamically, a form of organic agriculture in which composting is a key component. The compost is used to enrich the soil, thus closing the nutrient loop.

The final stop of the afternoon will be at Kimberton Waldorf School, a private school for grades K to 12. There, school officials will explain how they received an educational grant from the Department of Environmental Resources to demonstrate how cafeteria scraps can be easily and efficiently composted. The school is building a small composting shed, based on a design developed by the Woods End Research Lab in Maine. In it they plan to compost all the food waste generated by their cafeteria and brown bag lunch program, which serves over 300 meals per day. The composting will be managed by the lower school students, where it will be part of their curriculum.

The field day is being jointly sponsored by the Penn State, Rodale Institute, the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture, the Biodynamic Association and the Chester County Conservation District. The day is free and open to all, but pre-registration is recommended.

Call Kathy Koehler at (610) 683-1421. For more information on the day's events, call Cary Oshins at (610) 683-1415.

FFA Chapters Receive Farm Safety Awards

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)—Three Pennsylvania FFA chapters were recognized recently by the Department of Agriculture for their outstanding efforts to promote and improve farm safety, according to Secretary Charles C. Brosius.

Brosius presented certificates of achievement to members of the Spud Growers FFA Chapter of Potter County, Berlin Brothersvalley FFA Chapter of Somerset County, and Greenwood FFA Chapter of Perry County at Ag Progress Days. The presentations were held in conjunction with a meeting of the Pennsylvania Farm Safety and Occupational Health Advisory Board, which Brosius chairs.

"On behalf of Gov. Tom Ridge and the Department of Agriculture, I applaud your achievements in the Statewide FFA Safety Program for 1995," he said. "Your efforts represent a significant contribution towards farm safety in Pennsylvania. I encourage more FFA chapters to get involved in farm safety projects during the coming school year."

First place was presented to members of the Spud Growers FFA at Coudersport Area Junior and Senior High School, advised by Earl Brown. They conducted safety programs about pesticides and other farm chemicals, seat belts, drugs and alcohol, fires, cardiopulmonary resuscitation, tractors and lawn mowers, all-terrain vehicles and tractor overturns.

The second place award went to the Berlin Brothersvalley FFA Chapter, advised by Doyle Paul. Members conducted a farm rescue course at two colleges, held a safety demonstration for other FFA and 4-H members, and distributed safety information through the use of videos and fact sheets.

Third place was awarded to the Greenwood High School FFA Chapter, advised by MeeCee Baker. FFA members provided area farmers with information about dangers on the farm, helped farmers apply safety precautions, and educated local emergency personnel about farm rescue procedures.

The three FFA chapters are now vying for awards in the National FFA Safety Program to be presented during the National FFA Convention in Kansas City in November.

Passage of the Farm Safety and Occupational Health (FSOH) Act of 1994 paves the way for increased efforts to educate the public about farm safety and ways to prevent fatal and disabling farm accidents. The newly-appointed advisory board will be drafting guidelines for the distribution of funds to organizations who promote farm safety.

Tioga Fair Hosts Livestock, Milk Auction

C.J. HOUGHTALING
Tioga Co. Correspondent

WHITNEYVILLE (Tioga Co.)—The number of exhibitors and buyers was down from last year during the 4-H and FFA Junior Livestock Sale held recently at the Tioga County Fair.

This year, 27 exhibitors sold 45 animals for a total of $17,168. In 1994, 33 exhibitors sold 54 animals for $658 more overall. However, a few champion animals and their owners fared better this year than those of the same ranking over the past two years.

Among those who sailed past the 1993 prices were reserve grand champion market steer for $1.15 per pound (.05 more per pound than was sold in 1993), grand champion market hog for $4 per pound (.75 more per pound than was sold in 1994), reserve grand champion market hog for $2.25 per pound (.25 more per pound than was sold in 1994), and the grand champion Brown Swiss gallon of milk for $500 ($150 more than was sold in 1994).

Steve Thornton stands next to the grand champion market steer he purchased for Northeastern Farm Credit. The animal was raised by Brandon Reed of Tioga.

Cornell Brother Inc. also purchased the grand champion market hog from Duane Graves of Little Marsh. The reserve grand champion market hog, owned by Traci Webster of Wellsboro, went to Hatfield quality Meats in Hatfield.

The grand champion market lamb, owned by Matt Nickeson of Wellsboro, was sold to the Cowanesque Valley Livestock Market of Knoxville for $4 per pound. The Citizens and Northern National Bank purchased the reserve grand champion market lamb for Raymond Gigee.

The highlight of the Livestock auction was "Curlie the Pig," a 223-pound market hog donated by George Grater of Lawrenceville and raised by 4-H member Jennifer Gorenflo of Lawrenceville. Purchased and resold three times during the Livestock Auction, the pig brought a total of $680.15. The money from Curlie's sale was donated to the Livestock Sale Committee for promotion, expenses, and barn improvements.

Another donation was made by Cornell Brothers, Inc. when the buyer purchased a 160-pound market hog from Lauren Webster of Wellsboro for $152. The hog will be used in a pig roast to benefit the construction of a swine wash area at the Tioga County Fairgrounds. The roast is slated for this coming fall.

The Milk Auction grossed $1,335 from the sale of one gallon of milk from each of the four grand champion animals in the Junior Dairy Show.

Middlebury Coop purchased the milk from the grand champion Brown Swiss Bo Ka Blend Maria, a 3-year-old owned by Jason Butler of Middlebury Center.

Milk from the grand champion Ayrshire, Blue Devils Star Buttercup owned by Bradley Wales of Millerton, went to Tioga Trail Rides of Wellsboro for $160.

Ellen Norman's grand champion Jersey, a 4-year-old named Normandell Sooner Jesse, brought $325 for the one gallon of milk purchased by Northeastern Farm Credit.

For the fourth year in a row, Judson Agway of Columbia Crossroads purchased the grand champion Holstein milk. This year, the milk, purchased for $350 belonged to EsBern Enhancer Bute Buddy, the 6-year-old grand champion Holstein owned by Olivia Courtney of Mansfield.

Proceeding the Livestock and Milk Auction, a basket made by Jackie Gummo of Wellsboro and filled with Tioga County products, and a wool shawl made in one day during the fair in a Sheep to Shawl demonstration also went on the auction block. Proceeds from the basket benefitted the Livestock and Milk Auction while proceeds from the shawl helped to fund the Tioga County Historical Society, which has a farm museum on the fairgrounds.

Buyer Steve Cornell stands next to the grand champion market hog purchased from Duane Graves of Little Marsh. Cornell represents Cornell Brothers, Inc. of Middelbury Center.

Matt Nickeson of Wellsboro holds his grand champion market lamb for buyer Clyde Beard of Knoxville, owner of the Cowanesque Valley Livestock Market.

Dairy Team Prepares To Meet National Challenge

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

LEWISTOWN (Mifflin Co.) —What's in a name?

Plenty! Especially when the title of the competition is The 1995 Pennsylvania 4-H Achievement Days Dairy Cattle Judging Contest and Dairy Quiz Bowl.

As teams of teens from all over Pennsylvania converged at Penn State the end of July to place eight classes of cattle and give three sets of oral reasons, judges assessed them on placement and rationale. But in a title studded with words such as cattle, contest, and quiz, one word should not be overlooked — achievement.

Through exceptional judging and reasoning, the Mifflin County Dairy Judging Team outdistanced the competition with 1,432 points to achieve first-place status, qualifying them for competition during the North American International Livestock Show in Louisville, Ky. In talking with team members Michael Yoder, Andy Reed, Matthew Kline, and Michael Kline, one soon discovers that pride in personal achievement and growth garners more points than any judge could ever bestow.

Sue and Bill Sellers milk 50 head of registered Holstein just outside of Belleville. Andrew Reed is the son of James O. and Mary Reed of Reedsville. They milk 32 registered Holsteins on their Reed Gap Farm. Mike and Matthew Kline are sons of Russell and Deb Kline of McVeytown. They raise registered Holstein heifers on their Vern Lee Farm. Paul and Sherryl Yoder are the parents of Michael and Michelle Yoder. They milk 70 registered Holsteins on their Paul-Sher Farm near Belleville. Brad Yoder is the son of Lee and Joanne Yoder of Lewistown. They milk 70 head of Holstein three times a day on Ridge Point Farm.

"I learned that you might not be successful the first time, like in giving reasons, but not to give up," said 19-year-old Matthew Kline. "I try to do my best while still enjoying it."

Teammate Andy Reed entered the field of judging as a challenge. "I decided to see how good I could do in competition. I've been to two competitions. It makes you want to be competitive, but also you accept you don't always have to be first." Voted the quiet one of the team, Andy had, moments earlier, taken open and youth show grand champion honors with his junior 2-year-old.

"I learned to work toward a goal and not give up," said Matt's brother, Mike Kline. "My goal is to do my best while enjoying myself. I've had a problem with never believing in myself. But I learned that by working toward a goal, it's possible."

To prove his point, Mike placed second with 493 points in the senior division, qualifying him for competition at the World Dairy Expo in Madison, Wis. at the end of September.

"I felt it was an accomplishment to be there (at state competition). It was one of my goals. I feel fortunate to go to Madison," he reflects. Mike began judging as an 11-year-old.

Seventeen-year-old Michael Yoder entered judging as a 10-year-old and is in his seventh year of competition. "I learned public speaking skills, how to make eye contact. You meet lots of people at judging school. I would recommend that if anyone has a chance to be on a team, go for it!"

"Being on the judging team opened me up for the future," said Matt Kline. "If you're on the farm all the time, you don't realize what's out there."

As for the future, most said they'd be keeping their hands in agriculture, although maybe not necessarily in full-time farming. Michael Yoder plans to attend Messiah College, possibly in communications. Matthew Kline plans to stay involved in agriculture or farming after college. Andy Reed plans to attend an agricultural college and use what's learned in farming or in an ag-related business. Mike Kline said being on the judging team helped strengthen his interest in cattle. He plans to apply his further agricultural college education to the missionary field.

But for now, these four youth credit several people for their success — their parents, dairy club leaders, former judging coaches, and current Dairy Judging Team coach Sue Sellers of Belleville.

"Sue has given us a lot," said Matthew. "We wouldn't have achieved what we did without her."

"She always gave us a pep talk and said, 'Look at the possibilities!'," Mike Kline said.

"She didn't try to change us," Andy said. "She lets us go with our own style. She helps us."

"She doesn't push us," Michael Yoder said. "She lets us know when and where we can improve, and says to do your best."

While the Mifflin County 4-H Judging Team is quick to credit their coach, Sue Sellers is just as quick to credit the kids themselves.

"They have a lot of drive and really work to improve themselves. They worked on their own a lot. I gave them books to study on their own," Sue said, adding that several practices had to be cancelled this past winter because of snow. "It takes a lot of commitment — they all work on the farm, are in sports and church activities. All the kids are family oriented. I know Michael (Yoder) drills Michelle (his sister on the Junior Judging Team) out in the barn. They're a great bunch of kids to work with.

"4-H meant a lot to me. I got a lot out of it through showing and judging. I met a lot of people. I just wanted them to have the opportunity and chance to do it too. There are so many kids out there. I want to help them get all they can out of 4-H."

Raised in Blair County, Sue belonged to several 4-H judging teams throughout the '70s, including a 1976 team that went into national competition in Columbus, Ohio. After her 4-H years, she began her 18-year coaching career by co-coaching the Blair County team. Under her leadership, the 1991 Blair County team went to Louisville, and several individuals over the years went to Madison. In 1992, while still coaching the Blair County team, Sue was asked to coach the State Judging team.

When Sue, her husband Bill, and two daughters Rachel and Kristi, moved to Mifflin County in 1993, Sue said she'd give it all up — both coaching and 4-H work.

"But she saw the kids and saw the potential and couldn't give up on it," Bill said. At that same time, two other factors came into play. According to Sue, 4-H Dairy Club leader Darv Yoder said he'd taken the club as far as he could in teaching "cow basics," but he wanted more for the kids, and Sue and Bill's daughter Rachel was becoming more active in the Dairy Club, too.

Sue's commitment to coaching has paid off with Mifflin County's Junior Judging Team too. Brad Yoder, Michelle Yoder, and Rachel Sellers, as a team, also placed first at the state competition. Individually, Brad and Rachel placed in the top 10. Sue is hoping to raise enough money to take the Junior Team to Louisville, too.

"I'm just thrilled for the kids. Their parents and my husband deserve a lot of credit for running them around and getting them to meetings, which takes them away from milking at home." Sue said, with a laugh, regarding coaching, "The pay's not great, but the rewards are terrific!"

Trout Production School, Tour Set

KEEDYSVILLE, Md. — The Maryland Cooperative Extension Service in cooperation with Maryland Sea Grant is excited to announce the upcoming program, "Trout Production School and Tour," on Sept. 22-23 at the Western Maryland Research and Education Center (WMREC), 18330 Keedysville Rd., Keedysville.

There are excellent opportunities to add to the bottom line by utilizing pond or water sources to produce freshwater fish.

Demand for locally produced products including seafood has increased greatly in recent years. The Trout Production School and Tour program will teach the latest production practices and tour several nearby fish production facilities. Those interested in starting aquaculture operations or catching up on the latest news in freshwater production are encouraged to attend.

This program focuses on producing trout for market and will cover practices from hatching trout fry to marketing the finished product. Topics include hatching and fry production, cultural systems for trout, diseases and predators, water quality for trout production, assessing your water resources, tracking production costs, marketing your product, and regulations for the tristate area (Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia). The tour will include a recirculation facility, a fee fishing operation, and a pond production operation.

The Friday workshop will start with registration, coffee and donuts at 8:30 a.m. and adjourn at 5 p.m.; the Saturday tour will start at 9 a.m. and return to WMREC at approximately 3:30 p.m.

Pre-registration is required. You may register for individual days, as well as the complete program. For registration or additional information, call Steve Bogash, Enterprise Consultant, (301) 432-4492.

In Need of a Square Baler?

Buy a Center-line Design that packs in More Leaves (Protein) because Center Direct Feed has less crop movement before it enters the Packer Chamber.

See Binkley & Hurst Bros. Today!

There are many benefits of the Case International 8530 center-line rectangular baler. Narrow transport width. Easy in-field maneuverability. Tight, uniform shaped bales. And a big appetite for baling hay.

You'll appreciate the 8530 with the first bale you make. The high speed plunger provides the capacity you expect. And, a wide, low-profile pickup and center-line feeding mean more leaves end up in the bale, not on the ground.

And, if that's not enough, there are plenty of options available. A hydraulic pickup lift, flotation tires, hydraulic density control, wagon hitch and a choice of bale chutes or hydraulic bale thrower with electric controls.

Stop in and find out more about the Case International 8530 rectangular baler.

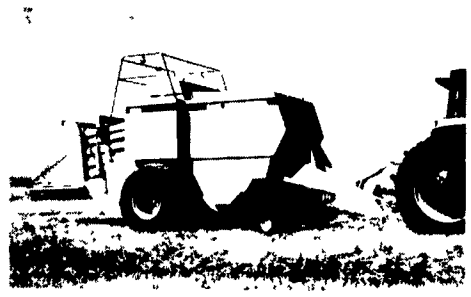
We have a Model 8530 Baler less thrower at an economy price in stock purchased before the price increase. Only one at this reduced priced to Save $. Let's Get Together Today!

See Binkley & Hurst Bros. Your Dealer Who Knows Balers!

In Stock Ready to Work!

JUMBO BALES

A Case International 8580 large rectangular baler makes JUMBO bales - up to 2,000 pounds.



It compresses hay equivalent to about 40 conventional bales into a single high-density package. The high-end capacity and performance of the 8580 means you can push these big bales through the machine all day — every day. That's a lot of hay!

And it's quality hay, too. The center-line design handles the crop gently to preserve nutritious leaves. The bales are uniformly shaped for efficient handling and shipping.

The 8580 also has a full list of standard features. Low-profile pickup, pre-packed chamber, massive gearbox, heavy-duty components throughout, electronic monitoring, double-tie knotters and low maintenance. And it's simple to operate. The Case International 8590 is a JUMBO value, too.

Mixing T.M.R. The Way You Want

Open-Top Mixers

Four notched augers mix fast--even square-baled dry alfalfa in limited amounts.

Self-aligning auger bearings mounted outside. Flanged auger tubes for easy removal.

Planetary gear reducers and roller chain reduction power the augers. Roller chains operate in enclosed oil bath.

On trailer and truck models, the discharge door and discharge augers are controlled hydraulically. Also, gravity discharge is available.

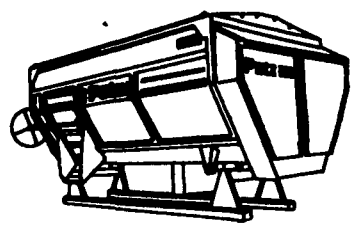
Trailer-mounted auger mixers



Stationary auger mixers

Tumble Mixers

Tumble mixing plus a central spiral circulator moving ingredients to the back of the drum while fliting moves ingredients forward.

No internal bearings.

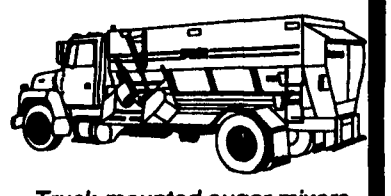
4 sizes from 135 to 290 cubic feet.



Truck-mounted auger mixers

CLAAS Forage Harvesters

CLAAS corn headers have a tremendous reputation around the world, thanks to their speedy harvesting in all conditions.

This high performance JAGUAR self propelled forager range can be equipped according to machine size with 5, 6 and 8 row maize headers.

Corn headers have to cope with extremely tough conditions. CLAAS headers feature weare resistant chains, automatic tensioning, plastic coated chain guides and ground, hardened rollers to ensure reliability, long life and low maintenance.

The cutting discs are pretensioned to work with optimal pressure They're self sharpening and maintenance free

When you use the CLAAS Autopilot in corn, the sensors follow the rows closely above the ground, and the JAGUAR steers dependably along the line. When reversing, the sensors swing forward and then reset automatically. The CLAAS Autopilot is invaluable in weed infested, hanging or laid crops, at night or in misty conditions.
